

UNIVERSAL TRAINING IS PROPOSED

SENATORS NOW OFFER BILL TO PROVIDE COMPULSORY DRILL FOR AMERICAN YOUTH.

PROPOSE 1 YEAR LIMIT

Suggested that Army General Staff Make Report at Next Session of Congress.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, Wednesday, Jan. 29.—Universal compulsory military training for American youths as a permanent national policy is proposed in a bill introduced in the senate today by Senator New of Indiana. The bill provides for the maintenance of a large regular army.

Training of not more than one year for all youths between 18 and 26 years—limited to one continuous period—divided from year to year—is provided by the bill which will be referred to the senate military committee with suggestion by Senator New that it be laid before the army general staff for a report at the next session of congress. The bill provides for the completion of the training period as fixed by the president would go into a national reserve for call in case of necessity. Priority of service would be placed upon the youngest annual class.

The plan was urged by Senator New as a national policy to be adopted as soon as possible. He denied that universal training involves maintenance of a large standing army and declared it would prevent that situation. In this connection he opposed the war department's plan for a temporary draft of 500,000 men as "neither necessary nor desirable."

Assessing that misconceptions regarding universal training have arisen, Senator New declared that the bill provides for the youth who is to be conscripted or who shall volunteer shall go prepared rather than that he shall be taken unprepared. It provides the only guarantee against any occasion for maintenance of a regular army of greater proportion than the country needs or willing to support.

"Universal training guarantees that the youth who is to be conscripted or who shall volunteer shall go prepared rather than that he shall be taken unprepared. It provides the only guarantee against any occasion for maintenance of a regular army of greater proportion than the country needs or willing to support."

"We should have at all times something like 200,000 men capable of being officers."

AMERICAN RED CROSS FURNISH SUPPLIES TO STRICKEN BALKANS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Paris, Thursday, Jan. 30.—To meet the immediate needs of war-stricken Balkan countries where there probably is greater distress than in any other part of Europe except Turkey, the American Red Cross has dispatched to the Balkans commissions recruited by Lieut. Col. Henry W. Anderson of Richmond, Va. Col. Anderson will have with him staffs of French and Italian, and will draw upon accumulated supplies until the allied powers are able to organize relief measures on an extensive scale. It is hoped to save thousands of lives before the next harvest.

For North Serbia seventy workers will operate under Lieut. Col. Thomas W. Patterson of Yale university. The personnel for South Serbia numbers 200 workers commanded by Major J. F. W. Evans.

A Greek commission of 75 men under Lieut. Col. Edward B. Capps of Princeton university, is at work. The program followed is being based on an anticipated supply of 150 tons of necessities weekly on the Greek ships that have been assigned to the use of the American Red Cross.

NAT GOODWIN, FAMOUS AMERICAN ACTOR, DIES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, Jan. 31.—Nat. C. Goodwin, the actor, died at a hotel here early today after a brief illness. Death was due to a general breakdown in health following an operation for the removal of his right eye several months ago.

Born at Boston July 25, 1857, Goodwin was a familiar figure in the American stage for many years. He made his first appearance in 1874.

SOLDIERS MAY BE DISCHARGED THROUGH LOCAL DRAFT BOARDS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, Thursday, Jan. 30.—A plan to demobilize soldiers returned from France through local draft boards instead of discharging them direct from camps, is being considered by the war department, according to Police Commissioner Enright, who made public today details of interviews which he had last Monday at Washington with Secretary of War Baker and Provost Marshall General Crowder.

Citing conditions in New York where he said there were 50,000 non-resident soldiers, and reports from Chicago that 200,000 discharged troops were drifting into the city, Mr. Enright declared that it would be better for the soldiers, their relatives and the larger cities if they were mustered out in their home communities.

Under the present system he said the men largely go from the demobilization camps to nearby cities, where they are often "stranded." For economic, moral and financial reasons, he added, he has urged the federal officials to send the released soldiers home.

The United Kingdom would be divided into districts. In each a subsidiary board would be appointed to take direct charge. All electric power stations would be purchased and placed in the hands of the local boards, each of which would be held responsible for the supply of electricity in its district and for the establishment of heating, lighting, gas and transmission systems.

If private companies wish to enter the electric business they would be compelled to buy their current from the public utility and their earnings would be under control. The financing of the plan would be in the hands of the government except where it is impracticable and advisable to finance the plan locally.

This plan is brought forward as a compromise between public and private control.

Belfast Strike Committee Rules City Affairs With Firm Hand

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, Jan. 31.—Officials from Belfast report a situation there which seems akin to that which recently obtained in German cities under revolutionary rule. The governing power has been usurped by a Belfast strike committee and the city is governed not from the magnificent municipal building known as the city hall, but from the humble localities.

"There is no outstanding personality," says the dispatch, "but there is a capable committee of trades union leaders most of whom are moderate and restrained. Nobody can do anything unless he comes, cap in hand to this committee. Even the police are helpless and the chief of police has asked the strike leaders to co-operate with the constables in preventing disorders and lawlessness. When strikers go to a hotel to cut off electric current police accompany them. The postmaster has thanked the strike committee for allowing the postoffice to use electricity."

"The committee has prescribed a limited amount of work in certain industries, particularly those involved in feeding and warming the people. Otherwise there is no industrial or commercial activity whatever."

"Test the strikers become bored, the committee has drawn up a program of entertainments to replace the closed theaters and moving picture houses. The lack of newspapers has been met by the publication of a strike paper at a commandeer price. The firm of printers ordered to instruct its employees to print the paper seems to have complied with the order, although one of the partners vainly protested.

"The incident has created some anxiety as to further commandeering and some eagerness on the part of the printers to know who is to pay them."

"Many discharged sailors and soldiers are co-operating with the strikers. It is reported that shipyard men and engineers at Londonderry are arranging to follow the example of the Belfast strikers."

PEOPLE PROVIDED BY INSURANCE

NEW PLAN PROVIDES FOR CONVERTING POLICIES BY SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

SIX DIFFERENT KINDS

Men Who Carry Government Policies Protected Against Destitution For Life.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Jan. 31.—Conditions under which soldiers or sailors now holding government life insurance may convert these policies within five years into other forms which can be carried with the government during their life-time, were announced today by Col. Henry D. Lindsey of the war risk insurance bureau. Rates will be made public soon and the new policies will not be available until the first of February.

There will be six different kinds of insurance—ordinary, life, twenty-year payment life, thirty-payment life, twenty-year endowment, thirty-year endowment, and group-term life. All policies will contain clauses providing that in case of permanent total disability of the insured man, the government will make monthly payments to him of premium payments until he ceases. This amounts virtually to old age pensioning and disability insurance and insures that no man who has served in the army or navy need ever be destitute if he carries the government insurance.

To Participate in Dividends. All policy holders will participate in dividends and earnings of over 3 1/2 per cent from the insurance fund will go into dividends. Since the reserves will be invested in government securities, most of which will pay in the neighborhood of 4 1/2 per cent it is certain that there will be large dividends to be returned periodically to policy holders.

Col. Lindsey stated today that the rates would be so low that officials of private insurance companies that assisted drafting the rate schedule had admitted that they could not compete with them.

Any man now in military or naval service holding government term life insurance can obtain the new forms but the amount will be limited to his present holdings, which in no case are more than $10,000. The government urges all men to continue to carry their present policies but to convert these as soon as they are financially able to do so.

The government itself and not private companies will carry these converted policies. It was emphasized today that the government will not be a business built up on the backs of fighting men during the war would now be turned over by the government to private concerns.

The war risk bureau today reported that 4,480,000 policies already have been issued to soldiers and sailors for insurance aggregating $39,232,000 of an average $8,756 on each man. Up to today $19,974,000 have been made on deaths of insured soldiers or sailors for amounts aggregating $294,720,000.

Features of Mr. Warfield's program follow: Guarantee by congress of a minimum rate of return on property investment, made effective through proper rates. Establishment of a fund of excess earnings above the fixed rate of return, one-third of this to go to the railroad company, one-third to employees as profit-sharing, and one-third to a reserve account.

Creation of a federal corporation, operating without profit to the railroads, to finance purchase of rolling stock, and to assist in financing the roads during the period of return to private operation and for mobilizing and purchasing equipment to be leased to railroads, to put into effect joint use of terminals and unification of facilities.

Federal regulation of rates by the interstate commerce commission as already established. Continuation of existing rate committees, composed of railroad men and shippers, to pass on rates proposed.

State commissions to continue to regulate intrastate rates, but in price making to coordinate with interstate rates determined by the interstate commerce commission.

Wage disputes to be conciliated if possible by the regional board of arbitrators, with appeal to the interstate commerce commission, finding not to be compulsory arbitration, but to be compulsory if the board of arbitrators fails to reach a decision, and future issues of securities to be supervised by regional commissions and the interstate commerce commission.

The Poles are said to have suffered considerable losses in killed and wounded.

FRENCH WOMEN WILL ADOPT WELFARE WORK OF U. S.

Paris, Thursday, Jan. 30.—The women of France, aided by the practical advice and guidance of their American sisters, are beginning to organize a program to promote the welfare of French working women. Model houses for employed women in Paris and in big French industrial centers, the women's university club, and the colony club of New York are projects planned.

Mrs. Robert Lansing, in opening one of the meetings said: "The war has brought the women of the allied nations together. Because we have suffered and worked together we must not lose this sisterhood now that peace has come."

Chief Klein stated this afternoon that while no mention has been made to him of his successor, he is quite sure that the new chief of the fire department will be a local police officer, the oldest member of the department, and assistant fire chief during the past 12 years or Thomas Abbot, a local saloonkeeper.

In the police department no inkling has been given Chief Champion of the man who will head the department. Several men have been mentioned but it was stated yesterday by a number in the middle west and has been on active duty with the Chicago police force for several years. He is a diamond

CHIEF KLEIN PRAISES FIRE FIGHTERS AS HE RETIRES FROM OFFICE

In severing the public relationship that has extended over a period of nearly 23 years and has been enriched for me with so many testimonials of confidence and approval, I am deeply indebted to the city of Janesville. I will on the part of my fellow citizens, I may be pardoned for saying that it has been my unrequited endeavor and ambition to do for the city of Janesville the very best I knew how in the way of affording fire protection.

Whatever success may have attended my efforts I leave to the judgment of the people with whom I lived and worked. I have attempted to serve always as a laborer of love. With emotions of pride and pleasure I have watched the fire department grow and extend its sphere of service. I will until now it can be classed, and I think without boasting, among the very best supported by cities the size of Janesville.

I cannot leave the service without a word of commendation and praise for the splendid men or boys who have served with me from the humblest to the highest and who have ably assisted in bringing the department to its present degree of efficiency. To my dying hour I shall always cherish these companions of my work and endeavor to remember them with the same loving kindness for them and for the members of their families near and dear to their hearts.

It never was permitted to any members of a department to see more than a number of men than those with whom I have been so long and intimately associated.

HENRY C. KLEIN.

Speeches and of late has been working with the detective department. Henry C. Klein, who for the past 23 years has been a member of the Janesville fire department, stated this afternoon that he is retiring from the fire department and will be succeeded by Peter D. Champion, who will be succeeded by Henry C. Klein.

Every member of the fire department called on the chief during the day and after shaking hands with him wished him the best of luck in his new enterprise. Chief Klein will erect a building at the Corner of Milwaukee and Adams streets and will enter the electrical contracting business.

Champion to Stay on Force. Peter D. Champion, the retiring police chief, stated this morning that he would remain as a member of the police force but no intimation had been given him of what he would be assigned to do. It is understood that Chief Champion will be assigned to special duty.

As with the firemen the police officers personally called on Chief Champion during the day and thanked him for his long and faithful service. Peter D. Champion has been connected with the police department for the past 12 years and has held the office of chief longer than any other since the demise of the late John J. Hogan. Prior to his entering the police department Mr. Champion was a member of the fire force joining at the same time that Henry C. Klein and several others joined.

Union Men Meet Clemenceau; Discuss Railroad Situation

Paris, Thursday, Jan. 30.—Premier Clemenceau received representatives of the national railroaders' union this evening. At the close of the conference the union men expressed themselves as being satisfied with the government's attitude toward the railway situation. LEAGUE OF NATIONS WILL RULE GERMAN COLONIES; SENATORS CENSOR PLAN

Peace Conference Accepts Wilson's Principles; U. S. Legislators Fear Troops Must be Sent to Turkey.

Paris, Jan. 31.—Whatever forces may be sent to Turkey for garrisoning purposes there will be no American troops among them, it developed today. It is pointed out that their use for this purpose would be inappropriate, as the United States has never been at war with Turkey.

The military committee of the supreme council expects within two days to report a plan for the allotment among the various nations of the troops to be retained on the western front.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Republicans of the senate today sharply attacked the plan for dealing with German colonies and occupied territories of Turkey in Asia, which it was announced in Paris yesterday had been proposed by President Wilson, and accepted in principle by the supreme council.

Senator Lodge, republican leader, declared the report of the plan, which, he said, would commit the United States to co-operation in maintaining order in the world, was "absolutely unbelievable" and Senator Knox of Pennsylvania asserted that the proposed obligations would involve "a stupendous and preposterous undertaking."

Senator Johnson of California denounced the method of making public the proceedings at the peace conference and declared he would never vote for a treaty that provided for the sending of American troops to Africa or Asia.

Senators Walsh of Montana and Lewis of Illinois, democrats, expressed doubt regarding accuracy of the statements in the dispatches. The latter declared the reported plan would violate the fundamental principle of self-determination of peoples, and said he believed the real agreement was merely for the temporary administration by the league of nations.

Self-Government For Some. Paris, Jan. 31.—The agreement reached by the allied council of ten on the colonial question, says a Havre agency statement today, provides that territories which are sufficiently civilized to give an expression of their wishes as to the form of their government will be permitted to set up such a government under the auspices of the league of nations, and either national independence of living under a protectorate of one or other of the great powers. Arabia and Mesopotamia are considered to be examples of this class.

In the case of peoples insufficiently developed for self government, the statement explains, the league shall choose the power most suitable to govern under certain guarantees to be fixed either by the peace conference or the league. Previously the African and Far Eastern colonies shall be left to the disposal of the great powers.

Turkish Question Important. As regards Asiatic Turkey, the statement adds, the allied council is to undertake its administration at once and the council of ten has asked the Versailles war council to submit a report as to the best troops available for the occupation of the Turkish area.

Wilson Fights Division. Paris, Jan. 30.—In the discussions concerning the disposition of the German colonies, President Wilson contended that to divide the colonies among the entente nations would be in direct contravention of the "14 points" which were the basis of the peace. Such a division he said to have added, also would violate the principles of the league of nations as laid down at the peace conference last Saturday.

The only government that was continuing to make objection yesterday to the compromise plan of administration of the German colonies was the Australian government, says the Paris edition of the Daily Mail today. Her delegates were declared to regard the ownership of New Guinea as vital to the existence of Australia. Premier Clemenceau, however, the newspaper adds, promised Australia his full support in safeguarding her position.

One result of the action taken by Italy in yesterday's discussion of the Daily Mail states, was the decision that the mandatory system of administration should only be applied to non-European territories.

New York Clothiers Offer Discount to Discharged Soldiers

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 31.—In presenting commissions today to the last class of reserve officers trained at the United States Naval academy during the war, Secretary Daniels predicted that "there will be no time of recession of interest in the navy."

"Not in your day," the naval secretary told the young officers, "will there be any reduction of naval power."

Secretary Daniels said he had no doubt that congress would authorize the recommendation of President Wilson for another three years' program of construction.

LABOR SITUATION IN UNITED KINGDOM GROWS MORE SERIOUS

STRIKE MOVEMENT SPREADS TO INDUSTRIAL CENTERS IN GLASGOW AND BELFAST

NEED MARTIAL LAW?

Government Believes Interference at This Time Would be Unwise;
Discussion at Special Meeting.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Jan. 31.—There was no prospect today of any betterment in the labor situation in the United Kingdom. If anything the situation both at Glasgow and Belfast has become more serious.

The strike movement is spreading to the large industrial establishments and disorders may entail the proclamation of martial law. The seriousness of the situation was discussed at a special meeting of the cabinet yesterday. The view taken by the government is that interference now would be unwise.

The strike movements are local and against the advice of the respects trade unions. Moreover there is an indefinite variety in the demands,
while many of the alleged grievances
are of trifling character. It is believed that the absence of strike pay for the men will soon bring about the collapse of the strike movement.

The problem is how to re-establish the authority of the trade unions and assist in the expansion of machinery of conciliation so as to enable each trade to settle its own disputes.

The attitude of the employers is that they will refuse to negotiate until the men resume work.

The board of trade has decided to grant an eight hour day to the railway men from February 1. A meeting of representatives of 75,000
railway clerks and station masters held in London, developed talk of a strike because the board of trade refused to recognize the men's union.

The critical stage of the strike on the Clyde was expected to be reached today when strikers meet to receive the government's answer to the request to intervene to secure a forty hour week. (London dispatches last night said the government had sent a reply declining to intervene). The people of Glasgow are just beginning to realize the gravity of the situation.

The power of the Glasgow strike committee appears to be increasing and is now exercising complete authority over the electrical department of the city.

All the trade unions in Scotland are expected to be represented at a conference in Glasgow tomorrow to consider a resolution supporting the strike and calling upon the government to enact a forty hour week law. It is said that the conference intends to organize a national strike.

Glasgow, Jan. 31.—Several persons were injured here today when the police charged a crowd of strikers with their batons. The mounted police were called out and a number of arrests were made.

NEAR EAST FUND IS LOSING IMPETUS; GOAL IS OVER $3,000 AWAY

The total subscription to the near east fund last night was $1,081, according to the committee's report today. The Janesville quota is $4,532.
The balance must be made up by citizens who have failed to subscribe through not realizing the needs of the suffering Armenians and Syrians, and by additional gifts from those who have already donated.

Sixty high school girls will aid tomorrow in the day which is expected to raise a considerable amount of money. Three of the men's committees which have not yet reported, will also swell the total.

The women's committees, which have been canvassing the residential districts will make their report at a meeting tomorrow night.

Durkewill Will Perform.
As an aid to the solicitation of funds, Al Pitroff, known as the "man of mystery" will perform a daring feat from the Gazette building at ten o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Pitroff will be encased in a straight jacket,
such as is used to quiet those violently insane, and will in this condition be hoisted head downward to the top of the Gazette building. While in mid-air, he will, without assistance free himself. Funds for relief in the near east will be collected from the crowd.
Pitroff has been doing this act gratis
for Red Cross and other funds for the past year. He will perform the same feat from the Chicago Tribune building a week from Saturday.

PRICES HIGH AT HOG SALE AS 300 MID-WEST BUYERS BID FOR HOGS

Big buyers and breeders from all over the middle west attended E. H.
Parker and sons' champion Duroc
auction sale held at the fair grounds this afternoon. The building in which the big annual sale was held, was packed to capacity, over 800 men crowding the seats so that the "Standing Room Only" sign was hung out before the sale started.

On the cart, sales great prices were realized, ranging from $175 to $210.
With Col. L. L. Sealey of Whitehall,
Ill., in the ring, assisted by Colonel Donley of Janesville, Col. McBride of Genoa, and T. P. Shreve of the Wisconsin Farmer, bidding was exciting. The big buyers were kept in fever heat, and the prices ran up well above the average.

Dinner This Noon.

At a dinner at the Myers hotel at noon 200 farmers from all parts of the middle west were present. Those who failed to get to the hotel on time were sent to different restaurants. Ed.
Parker and son stood all expenses of the dinner. J. A. Craig, general manager of the Duroc company, gave a brief talk to the men after the dinner in which he extended a cordial welcome to them. Upon being introduced, Mr. Craig stated that his world famous hogs had been sold as a brother farmer, than as the head of the big firm.

After the dinner big trucks carried the buyers to the fair grounds, and the sale started shortly after three.
The highest bid on early sales was $310. A. W. Thomas of West Salem, Wis., bought one of Parker's best pure bred Duroc sows, bred to a white pig, at this price after fur-tious bidding.

Other Big Sales.

Other sales of sows were made in quick time at the following prices to these men: "Columbus Lady," Fred Schlenker, Broadhead, $250; No. 13 to
J. C. Bulger, Waterloo, Ia., $270; No.
14 to Whitman, Monroe, La., $280;
No. 15 to W. N. Johnson, Kirkland, Ill., $240; No. 16 to Brooks of Eagleville, Mo., $250; (Mr. Brooks is the owner of Parker's $2,500 King

Hindenburg Said to Be Raising Army to Protect East Frontier

Paris, Jan. 31.—The reports received here from Berlin stating that Field Marshal von Hindenburg is raising four army corps for the protection of Germany's eastern frontier have attracted considerable attention in military circles here. If the field marshal were successful in collecting such a body of troops it would be a setback to the present calculations of Germany's armed strength, on which the size of the allied army of occupation is to be based.

RAIL COMMISSION HEARS AFTON DAM LEVEL TESTIMONY

Members of the state railroad com-

made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Dr. T. W. Evans
Dr. T. W. Evans, formerly of Janesville, passed away at his home in Madison Monday evening at the age of 74
years. Dr. Evans studied with Dr.
Henry Palmer in this city many years ago. He was a brother-in-law of Mrs.
F. C. Clark and Miss Hattie Alden of this city.

NEW STREET CARS PUT IN SERVICE BY TRACTION COMPANY

Evidently scenting the air of prosperity which is prevalent in this city,
the Janesville Traction company has made its first step toward improving
the street car service in Janesville.
This morning two cars which are said to have been discarded by the Rockford company, but which are far superior to the cars which have been operating on the lines in this city,
were put into service.

Both of the cars, Nos. 205 and 223,
are much better than the old Janesville cars. They are bigger and will accommodate more passengers. Another redeeming feature of the new cars is their width. They are several feet wider than the old cars thus increasing the danger to stand without travelling on the feet of those who are sitting.

On their first trip this morning the cars caused a great deal of excitement. Several of the residents could not believe that the cars were to be part of the Janesville Traction company and one person was heard to remark that they were being given a work-out in this city.

The cars have been put in service on the Main and Washington street line.
Possibly the next step of the superintendent of this city will be to renew the routes of the cars and erase for all times the inscription "Depots and Cemetery" which is now displayed prominently on several of the cars.

NAVAL PROGRAM IS GIVEN COMMITTEE O. K.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, Jan. 31.—Unanimous approval of the administration's new three year naval program with the number of capital ships reduced from 16 to 10 because of differences among experts over the value of battle cruiz-ers, was voted today by the house
naval committee.

In addition to the ten battleships, to cost not over $21,000,000 each, the program adopted provides for ten scout cruisers to cost up to $4,000,000 each. It was decided to leave in abeyance the proposal to construct 180 smaller craft, that the navy department might recommend at the next regular session of congress types of vessels needed to round out the navy in the light of war lessons.

THIEVES ENTER STORE OF FRANK DOUGLAS BUT ARE SCARED BY POLICE

After Gaining Entrance Through Rear Door They Are Frightened Away Before They Secure Any Loot.

Thieves evidently figured that as the Douglas Hardware company had been robbed several times it would be a good place to rob again. They appeared wrong, however, and were frightened away before they could make their get-away with any merchandise.
They gained entrance by breaking the glass in the rear door and then lifting the large wooden bar which is the only means of keeping the door locked. The large window glass was struck with great force as some of it was found on the floor fully fifteen feet from the door.

The attempted robbery occurred between 9 and 9:30 o'clock, as Night Watchman Dennis McGinley tried the door at nine o'clock and found it securely locked. About 9:30 the night policeman made his round of the alley
and found the door open. He investigated and found that the thieves had been in the store but evidently feared
his approach and made their escape
before he arrived.

The Douglas Hardware store has been robbed several times and the majority of the times nothing has been taken with the exception of shot gun shells and other small articles. It is thought by the police to be the work of a gang of young boys who are acquainted in the neighborhood and who know that the rear floor of the store is an easy place to open.

ANDELSON BROS. OPEN NEW STORE.

Andelson Brothers' new store, carrying a complete line of women's and Misses' ready-to-wear apparel, including millinery, opened to the public this morning. The store is under the management of Henry Solomon, formerly with the firm at its Madison establishment. The store occupies the site of the old Madden & Rae firm, but the building has been completely remodelled to meet the needs of its new occupants. Carpenters, painters, and decorators have been working there for several weeks. The interior presents an exceptionally attractive appearance. The floor is laid with green plush. Show cases and dress displays line the walls, leaving more than ample room in the center of the floor. A complete millinery department is at the back of the store.

C. V. Kerch States That Plans For New Bridge Call for Double Street Car Tracks

J. P. Cullen who was awarded the contract for the laying of the water mains for the new Jackson street bridge is rapidly completing arrangements for the starting of the actual work. The Janesville Traction company has not as yet removed their trolley wires over the bridge but are expected to do so today or tomorrow. The street car bridge will not be raised but will be supported by a new structure. C. V. Kerch, city engineer, stated this morning that the plans for the new bridge which were similar to the Milwaukee street bridge called for double tracks. The traction company was inclined to lay only one track at the present. He is making every possible effort to have the double tracks put in now and thus saving tearing up the bridge at some later date.

SNOWBALL MULCAIRNS TAKEN TO MADISON TO ANSWER LIQUOR CHARGE

Owing to a new warrant being issued by the federal government for giving liquor to soldiers, the men do not have to be taken before United States Court Commissioner Stanley D. Tallman in this city before being taken to Madison. This developed yesterday when United States Marshal William T. Toulton arrived in the city to get "Snowball" Mulcairns and Ben Dixon. Mr. Toulton took the men to Madison on the afternoon train. They will be arraigned to answer a charge of giving liquor to men in uniform. Owing to the sentence of 10 days in jail given William "Coxie" McConnell of this city, Chief Chapman asked Marshal Toulton if the authorities still desired the men. Mr. Toulton explained that the light sentence was due to a new judge sitting on the bench in place of Judge Sanborn, who is ill. Mr. Toulton stated that the government is not after these boys, but is only looking for intention of lightening sentences.

WELCOME COMMITTEE TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Three phases of the welcoming of returning soldiers will be taken up this evening at a meeting of a sub-committee of the welcome home board at the Chamber of Commerce. Provision of funds for Janesville men discharged from the service who are temporarily in need of assistance, will be discussed. The men are passing through Janesville, who become "Stranded" here, will be arranged for. Celebration of the homecoming of men who arrive in groups will be considered. The return of the Blackhawk will receive special attention. The financial needs of the men are thought to be the most important. Word has been received that the November and December allotments have been mailed by the government, so that the families of soldiers will receive aid in the near future. The postponement of the time limit for tax payment will especially benefit these discharged men who have not had time to readjust their affairs. The sub-committee are: Mayor Valentine, C. R. Bearemore of the Y. M. C. A., Fred C. Schmitt of the labor bureau, Mrs. John Rexford and Miss Mabel Shumway of the home war work committee of the Red Cross, and a representative of the Chamber of Commerce.

LUTHERANS WILL MEET AT MADISON, FEB. 8

J. K. Jensen of the Janesville Sand and Gravel company, who was appointed state chairman for the Lutherans for the extensive drive of the Wisconsin Lutheran churches to raise $50,000 in Wisconsin for reconstruction work in France and at home, announced this morning that the active campaign would open on February 16 and would be concluded ten days later. Mr. Jensen, one of the most prominent Lutheran workers in Wisconsin, stated that a meeting would be held at Madison on next Wednesday, at which time Rev. Dr. Smith of New York would address the gathering. Rev. Smith was one of the two commissioners of Lutherans in France and returned from that country a few weeks ago. All Lutheran ministers in the state have been invited to attend the meeting at Madison and each has been requested to invite one layman to attend. Rev. Smith, who had charge of caring for the 400,000 French Lutherans during the war, will make a detailed report on conditions in France and what has to be done by the Lutherans in the work of reconstruction. J. K. Jensen stated that many prominent Lutherans from Janesville would attend the meeting.

Voice of the People

To the Editor: When Janesville chooses a truant officer will it choose a Janesville woman? When Rockford chose a truant officer, last December, it was by competitive examination at the Court House. I am not a property owner nor a taxpayer, but my father is a Rockford resident who wrote on the exam. Judge Carpenter, the County Judge elected her. When Rockford established a Station Aid, it sent to Chicago for Miss Maud Cavanagh, a Rockford girl, to be in charge. In Station Aid work there to come back to Rockford at an attractive salary, to take that position there. Is there a woman of girl in our city capable of holding the position of Truant Officer? Time will tell. Why not do as other cities do: hold a competitive exam. Publish the date of the same in the daily papers, and give Janesville product the chance to do not want the place, but know from experience that our "City Beautiful" is very partial to outsiders. I am not a property owner nor a taxpayer, but my father is a Rockford resident who wrote on the exam. A JANESVILLE GIRL.

MAYORALTY TIMBER NOW BEING DISCUSSED; NEW TICKET PROMISED

CHARLES E. VALENTINE AGAIN REQUESTED TO BE NOMINEE FOR RE-ELECTION, YOUNG MEN TO PUT CANDIDATE IN FIELD.

MAY INCREASE PAY

Majority of Aldermen Favor Substantial Boost in Mayor's Pay. Henry C. Klein Said To Be A Candidate

Mayor Charles E. Valentine, yesterday afternoon refused to announce his candidacy for reelection. He stated that he had given the matter considerable thought and that as yet he was unprepared to announce whether he would be a candidate or not. "I did not want the office last spring," Mayor Valentine said, "and I only consented to be a candidate after several of the citizens of Janesville came to me and urged that I submit to their wishes and accept the office."

Mayor Valentine has been known as the "harmony" candidate. He was chosen by the people of the city rather than to have them choose a man who would cause friction within the city which would result in a large number of independents running for the office.

Record Is Good Mayor Valentine's record during his nine months in the office has been good. He has shown a progressive spirit. In discussing the political situation in the city, Mayor Valentine stated that already he has been approached several times and asked that he announce his candidacy for mayor. It is claimed by those well acquainted with the political situation that if he comes out with an announcement that he is a candidate it will keep several others from running as independents.

Mayor Valentine stated yesterday afternoon that he was greatly pleased with the cooperation given him by the present council, and also stated that not once during the nine months he has been in office has he had any friction in the council. "The aldermen had only one thought in mind," said Mayor Valentine, "and that was to work for a bigger and better Janesville at all times."

"I could not ask for a better group of gentlemen to work with," he asserted, "and I have found during the term of office that the men are wholly unselfish and are working every minute for the betterment of their city." It is said to be the desire of those in close touch with the political situation to have a reelection of Mayor Valentine. It occurred when the commission form of government was voted in. At the primary election at that time there were 12 candidates for mayor and a larger number seeking the commissioners' offices.

Urgo Higher Salary Others who keep in close touch with politics in Janesville are of the opinion that the salary of $300 per annum, now paid the mayor, is an inadequate salary for a man to seek the position. The salary, they claim, is far below what should be paid for the office in a city with the population of Janesville and several of the aldermen are known to favor a substantial increase for the mayor. It is probable that salaries will be fixed at the next meeting of the council and it is asserted that many of the aldermen would vote a raise for the mayor.

It is conceded that Janesville with its proposed growth must have a business administration. It is pointed out that the office of mayor should pay a sufficient salary to attract a man who can afford to give his entire time to the office. Many of the aldermen favor a larger salary for the mayor and have been free to discuss the matter. It is not known what provision will be made by the finance committee, but it is assumed by several that it will be substantially increased. Henry C. Klein, the retiring fire chief, has been mentioned as a candidate. Mr. Klein was interviewed yesterday and when asked regarding the rumors stated he had absolutely nothing to say. "I have been approached at least 200 times by prominent men asking me to announce my candidacy," Chief Klein said yesterday.

Rumors have been rife throughout the city for the past three days that the young men of the city are quietly banding themselves together, and are to hold a mass meeting in the near future when a young business man will be nominated to run for the office. Nothing definite regarding this could be found out, but it is being freely discussed around the city and several young men have already been mentioned as likely candidates.

Nothing will be done by the young men. It is claimed, until the council has been fixed by the council. The election will be held on April 1 and the primary will be March 18.

An Appreciation:

The attendance accorded us on our opening day was really larger than we had expected and we are pleased accordingly.

Many of our visitors were most enthusiastic over our displays, the comment and compliments we received throughout the day assured us of continued warm welcome and patronage.

While we did not expect to sell many garments on the opening day, yet we are agreeably surprised at the way sales mounted up throughout the day.

To those women who were unable to come today we hold forth a hearty invitation to them to come when they can.

A few special lots of garments are being offered at January Sale prices.

Dresses, Coats, Capes, Suits, Blouses, Millinery, comprise the new spring merchandise which we are displaying and which we know you will enjoy seeing and trying on.

REASONS FOR GOOD ROADS.

F. A. Cannon, executive secretary of the Good Roads association of Wisconsin, has compiled some interesting figures and presented them in an article published in the association's monthly periodical, "Good Roads for Wisconsin." Rock county is fourth in the state in the number of motor vehicles owned. The article follows:

The total number of motor vehicles
owned in Wisconsin, passenger cars and trucks, in Wisconsin on January 1, 1919, was 196,253.

In addition to this 1,500 dealers licenses were issued, entitling the dealer to the use of four cars. Assuming each dealer used two cars, it would mean a total of 3,000, bringing the grand total to 199,253.

The total number of motor vehicle licenses issued was 7,233.

The total number of truck licenses issued was 6,817.

Using approximate figures—there are 200,000 motor vehicles in Wisconsin, and assuming the average cost to be $500, it means that there is $100,- 000,000 invested in motor vehicles in this state. This is 5% on $2,000,000,- 000.

Assuming that the upkeep of a car
costs $25 per month, and the average car is run for eight months of the year, it means that the people of Wisconsin are spending $40,000,000 per year on the upkeep of automobiles.

It means that there is one automobile to every 12.5 people in Wisconsin.

The total number of motor vehicle
licenses issued in 1917 was 164,531,
which shows an increase of 31,722
this year over last, or about 20%.

The increase in the year 1917 over 1916 was 49,000 cars or 45%. The increase of 1918 over 1917 was 36,000 cars or approximately the same percentage. It is evident from this that the war cut the percentage increase in half.

The total number of motor vehicles
licensed in 1914 was 34,646, making
the increase from 1914 to 1918 470%.

Based on a mileage of 3,000 miles traveled by each of these cars, the total mileage traveled would be 588,- 759,000 miles.

On the assumption that the average car runs 14 miles on a gallon of gasoline, it would mean a total of 42,054,000 gallons. At 25c a gallon, this means that the motorists of Wisconsin spent $10,513,553 for gasoline
in 1918.

It is difficult to figure the saving that would result to the owners of motor vehicles by the development of good roads. Assuming an exceedingly low figure, it would save 1 cent a mile, which would mean $5,887,590.

Allowing for the increase in the number of automobiles in the next ten year period, it is fair to assume that this saving would run to $75,000,000,
sufficient to construct a thoroughly adequate state trunk highway system
of 5,000 miles within the period.

The pertinent force of these figures
is that if the people of Wisconsin
would invest but a part of the loss caused by bad roads in the securing of good roads, they would secure them quickly. The word invest is used ad-visedly, because the building of good roads is a dividend paying investment. It brings big returns.

Of course, Milwaukee county leads in the number of motor vehicles owned, there being a total of 25,675.

The county has 136 automobile dealers. Dane county is next with 9,888 individually owned motor vehicles and 71 dealers. Dodge is third with 5,756; Rock county is fourth with 5,522 motor vehicles; Fond du Lac fifth with 5,437; Sheboygan sixth with 4,935; Racine seventh with 4,935;
Grant eighth with 4,888; and Waukesha ninth with 4,720.

What of the future? Is it not safe to say that the increase in automobile ownership in 1919, after the slack year 1918 will run to 40% in view of the experience in 1916 and 1917. This would mean an increase of 78,800
cars, and bring our total at the end of the calendar year to 275,000 cars using round numbers. May we not look forward at this rate to the year 1920 showing 350,000 motor vehicles
in Wisconsin?

The most striking fact brought out
by an analysis of these figures is that the distinctly agricultural counties far surpass the counties with large city populations in the relative ownership of motor vehicles in proportion to their population.

A group of 7 agricultural counties shows a relative ownership of one motor vehicle to each 7.5 people, while a group of 7 counties made up largely of city population shows an ownership of one to 17.8.

Green county, a distinctly agricultural county, again leads in relative automobile ownership, one motor vehicle to every 6.7 people. The only city in the county is Monroe, which,
according to the census of 1910, had a population of 4,400 people, out of a total population of 21,647. On the basis of five people to a family it would appear as if practically every family in the county had a car.

Compare this with Milwaukee county, with an estimated population of 508,491 in 1917, of which 90% live in the city of Milwaukee or other incorporated cities of the county. The total number of motor vehicles is 25,- 675, or one motor vehicle to every 19.6 people.

Walworth county is another typical agricultural county. The population
according to the United States census estimate of 1917 was 29,874. The largest city is Whitewater, with a population of 3,200. The city population of this county, divided among Delavan, Elkhorn, Lake Geneva, and Whitewater, is 10,500. The relative ownership of automobiles is 1 to every 7.5.

Compare again such agricultural counties as Washington with one automobile to every 7.2 people, Lafayette with one to every 7.6. Grant with one to every 7.9, Waukesha with one to every 8.1, Calumet with one to every 8 people, and Dodge with one to every 8.2, all agricultural counties;
with such counties as Douglas, with one to every 30, Brown one to every 16.9, Kenosha one to every 14.2, La Crosse, one to every 13.8, Racine one to every 18.2, Winnebago one to every 16.9—all counties with a heavy city
population.

This proves that the farmer owns the automobiles, and the farmer owns them because they are a business necessity for him, and not for pleasure purposes, and the farmer needs the roads.

For the benefit of those who find it hard to believe that Janesville is going to be bigger and better, a perusal of last night's columns of the Gazette perhaps will give encouragement. A new furniture company is preparing to open a store; a women's ready-to-wear store opens today; an old established general store plans to make additions to keep pace with the anticipated growth; a dry goods company buys building to expand. That's not bad for one day's announcements.

The administration is asking industrial concerns to give every aid in putting men, discharged from the army, to work. Many plants are marking time awaiting the unwinding
of governmental red tape because no one seems to know what is to be done
with the war material which clutters up many manufacturing places. It cannot be removed without permission of the powers that be.

Sixty young women of the city will pin a tag on every man, woman and child, Saturday, who feels that they can afford to give something to the starving people in Turkey and the Near East. A small portion of our prosperity will give some unfortunate creature comfort. Be sure and wear a tag Saturday.

Men in this country are complaining that they cannot live on wages of $1 an hour. Wilson asks that congress appropriate $100,000,000 to feed 100,000,000 people in Europe. How long will a dollar support a man in Europe?

Wisconsin stock breeders are pushing a campaign for better bulls. They have shown that it costs no more to feed good cattle than it does to nourish scrubs. Every farmer who enters in this campaign will be benefited.

THEIR OPINIONS

SATISFACTION
Everyone will be satisfied at the peace table if everyone is allowed to grab off what everyone wants—Appleton Post.

The Viewpoint Is Different.
After rejoicing because a lot of workers have got an advance in wages, most people become very indignant when prices go up to pay for the advance.—Marquette Eagle-Star.

The War Is Over.
The farmers who were asked to speed up production as a war measure, a year ago, are being urged by the department of agriculture to reduce the acreage of tillage crops to normal proportions this season.—
Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

Perhaps.
Senator La Follette voted against the measure providing a hundred million dollars to aid the starving in Europe. He thought he was the champion of the poor. Perhaps these people are too poor, and then they can't vote here, either.—Antigo Journal.

We Get a Different Skunk.
How the times do change! A state ratifies the prohibition amendment to the constitution now and gets only a two-line mention on the inside pages of the newspapers. A few years ago when such an action would have been the fifteenth wonder of the world.—Kenosha News.

Others Are Wondering.
Restrictions on the manufacture of beer have been removed by the government. However, near-beer
may have to go with the real article
when the dry rule goes into effect

VANDERBILT "HONEYMOON" YACHT ADDS
ANOTHER ROMANCE TO ITS LONG LIST

Countess Szechenyi, left, and Mrs. Charles Fellowes-Gordon.

After the recent wedding of Sara Price Collier to Lieut. Charles Gordon-Fellowes someone said, "Well, look where they met. No wonder a wedding was the result." Young Fellowes was a flag lieutenant on H. M.
S. Warrior, which may mean nothing at first, but when it is remembered that it used to be the Vanderbilt pleasure yacht before it became a part of the British navy, then everyone understands. While still used as a pleasure yacht for the Vanderbilts the yacht had several courtships of national and international fame to its credit. It is said to be responsible for the marriage of Marian Fish, daughter of Stuyvesant Fish, to Albert Zabriskie Gray, and of Gladys Vanderbilt to the Count Szechenyi. Then there was the romance of Nathalie Schenk Collins and William Laimbeer.

LOST OPPORTUNITIES.
"When I am rich," he used to say,
"A thousand joys will give away."
I'll walk among the poor I find
And unto one and all be kind.
I'll place a wreath of roses red
Upon the brow of all my dead.
I'll help the struggling youth to climb
In doing good I'll spend my time.
To all in need I'll friendly be
The day that fortune smiles on me.

He never guessed that being kind
Depends upon the heart and mind
And not upon the purse at all;
That poor men's gifts, however small,
Make light some weary traveler's load.
And smooth for him his troubled road.

He never knew or understood
The fellowship of doing good.
Because he had not much to spare,
He thought it vain to give his share.

Yet many passed him, day by day,
He might have helped them on their way.
He fancied kindness something which Belongs entirely to the rich.
And so he lived and toiled for gold,
Unsympathetic, harsh and cold,
Intending all the time to share
The burdens that his brothers bear.

When he possessed great wealth and could well afford a friend to be.

His fortune came, but oh, too late
The poor about him could not wait.
They never guessed and never knew
The things that he had meant to do.
Few know how much he'd planned to give.

If God had only let him live,
And when at last his form was cold,
All that he'd left on earth was gold.
A kindly name is something which
A man must earn before he's rich.

Emotions Make Us Human.
There is no great soul without great capacities of sorrow. As intellectual machines we may be very efficient in common life, very successful in whatever our business may be; but this firm purpose and masterly efficiency do not make us men. They leave us pieces of effective machinery. The finer life, though it must not be exclusive and tyrannical, is that of the emotions. We feel, we suffer; therefore we are human. We crave to give and receive love; therefore we draw nearer to whatever we know of the divine.—Chicago Daily News.

A Patriotic Vision.
You do not seem to know that he must fall who appeals to the cowardice of the American people. Step out of the way of the nation that marches with firm step and a proud heart after the martial drumbeat of her destiny.
She feels that the struggle of ages compresses itself into the portentous crisis of this hour. It is for coming centuries she fights; and already she sees before her what was once a patriotic dream rise into magnificent, sunlit reality.—Carl Schurz, 1864.

A Few Wild Turkey Facts.
There are three varieties of wild turkeys, the Mexican, North American and Honduran. The Honduran is a native of the tropics and has a plumage equal in brilliancy to that of the peacock. Attempts to domesticate this turkey have not been successful. The domestic turkeys have been developed from the Mexican and North American varieties.

WHO'S WHO
in the Daily News

Baron Sonnino.

He has been a journalist, diplomat
and politician all his life.

Sonnino is the second son of a wealthy citizen of Pisa, of Jewish extraction, who professed Christianity.
The baron was born in Alexandria,
Egypt, in 1840. His mother was an English woman, and this may explain
the pro-British attitude which Baron Sonnino has always shown. The family returned from Alexandria to Pisa,
where the younger son received his education. He received the degree of LL. D. from the University of Pisa at an early age, and entered the diplomatic service two years later.

He won a post in the foreign office,
and was attached in turn to the Italian legations at Madrid, Vienna, Berlin and Ypres. In 1872 he returned to Italy, and, with his friend,
Leopoldo Franchetti, and Pasquale
Vilbarr, made an exhaustive inquiry into conditions in Sicily, and published a two-volume report of their work. Afterward Sonnino and Franchetti founded in Rome a weekly review, the Rassegna Settimanale. Son-nino remained editor from his start,
in 1878, until it was merged into a daily, in 1882. In 1880 he was elected a deputy from San Casciano, Val di Pesa, near Florence to the Fourteenth legislature, and has ever since represented that district.

Sonnino's first appearance as a cabinet member was in 1887, when he succeeded Gerardi as under secretary of state for the treasury, and which post he retained until the fall of the Crispien ministry in 1889.

In 1895 Sonnino made a famous attack on the Forlani ministry, which drove it from power, and he succeeded as premier, but was soon himself overthrown.

Not until 1909 did Sonnino again
regain his power, and then his premiership lasted through a quiet incidence, but 100 days. As before, he was overthrown through a vote on a question of general policy, and again Giolitti, he opponent throughout his political life, succeeded him.

In 1901 Sonnino launched Il Gior-nale d'Italia, a daily newspaper, upon
a successful career in Rome.
He has been Italy's foreign secretary since the war began.

HERE'S TOUGH ONE FOR WILHELM: KRUPP PLANT WORKS FOR U. S.

Emboss of famous Krupp factory at Essen, Germany, and one of giant siege mortars turned out there.

The giant Krupp plant at Essen, Germany, one of the factors on which the ex-kaiser counted in his dreams for world conquest, is now devoting its energies to turning out gun parts for the United States. The factory is making parts for seventy-two incomplete German cannons rejected by the American authorities when the guns were turned over as part of the war material demanded under the armistice terms. Eighty other cannons have been shipped by the Germans to the American army headquarters to replace other guns rejected. These eighty guns and the seventy-two for which parts are being made will complete the delivery to the U. S. forces.

HANOVER

Hanover, Jan. 30.—Joseph Hovey of Rinton, Neb., came Wednesday for a visit with his brother, W. C. Hovey.

Mrs. George Kittle and baby Theodore visited a few days, last week, with Mrs. St. Keller.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Shea were called to Monroe, Saturday, on account of the death of Mrs. Shea's father Mr. Hyland of Monroe.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Waddle and family visited Sunday with Mrs. August Lehman, town of Rock.

Cornel Kittle, Miss Nellie Tobin and Walter Kettle were Sunday guests at Silas Keller's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Ehringer entertained the following guests, Sunday night: Mr. and Mrs. George Shaffner and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Conley and son Orville, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Flint and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gus

Behling and Mrs. Gundell. The evening was spent in music and games. Refreshments were served.

Ray, Pickler of Beloit held services Sunday in the White church.

Mrs. Fred Bower returned to her home in Milwaukee after a week's visit with her daughter, Mrs. W. Conley. Orville Conley accompanied her home.

Mrs. W. E. Walters spent Thursday in Chicago.

NEWVILLE

Newville, Jan. 30.—Orville Barnes of Edgerton and Miss Crane who formerly lived here, were visitors at the home of August Huse, on Monday.

Harvey Brown broke his arm while cracking his car before starting for Edgerton high school, this morning.

Mr. Bruhn of Michigan, is spending some time at the home of L. E. Bruhn and other relatives here.

Mrs. Gilbert and a party of friends visited her daughter here, yesterday.

Hold Farmers' Conference.

Menasha.—A twenty-acre tract of land near Portage, a historic spot, has been donated by ex-Lieutenant Governor John Strange to the Twin City troop of Boy Scouts of America. The scouts will use the land for their annual camping trip.

High School News

Sixty high school girls have answered the call of the committee in charge of the campaign to raise funds for the starving Armenians by volunteering to serve as "taggers" on Saturday. The girls will work under the supervision of Mrs. Herbert Ford and Mrs. Louis Levy, and will be divided into several squads. They are ordered to report at the office of the Chamber of Commerce, Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The girls need make no provision for eating lunch downtown, as it will be serving to them free of charge at a place which will later be designated. The girls are from the entire four classes of the school.

Roy Brandt, representing Row, Peterson & Co., of Chicago visited Principal Bassford yesterday. Mr. Brandt is a former superintendent of schools at Antigo, and is well known in school activities in the state.

The manual training department of the high school recently received an urgent call from the central headquarters of the American Red Cross at Chicago, requesting the department to furnish as soon as possible, 10 small tables, known as "tablets" to be shipped to Camp Dodge, Des Moines, Ia., to be used in the base hospital located at that point. The tables are made of oak, which is being furnished by the local Red Cross chapter. Other articles, everything is being done free of charge. It is expected by A. Z. Zimmerman, who is directing the work, that they will be completed and ready for assignment within the next few weeks.

Startling evidence was produced in the mock trial, which is being held at the high school, yesterday and this morning. The attorneys for the defendant are examining their witnesses. Judge Bassford yesterday announced that he would extend the length of the trial, so that the major portion of next week will be taken up with it.

FAMOUS STORY TOLD IN PICTURES

Harold Bell Wright's great book, "The Shepherd of the Hills", one of the best sellers, has been done in film and is being presented at Myers Theatre. The picture is as beautiful and has the same heart appeal as the story. Capacity audiences greeted it the first day.

Tales of the Friendly Forest

Up at the Old Farm Yard there was a great bustle. Yes siree, bus. And the reason was that Henry Jenny had a brood of fluffy little chickens. Cocky Dookey hardly knew what to make of them. You see, he was so used to big chickens that when he came to look at these fluffy balls of yellow down, he didn't know what to do. So he just stood on his tiptoes and crowed, "Cock-a-doodle-de!" and the big farmer thought he was singing because he was a proud father. But that was not the reason at all.

"Come, my dears," said Henry Jenny to her little chicks, "let us take a walk in the Pleasant Meadow." So all the little chickens followed after her and by and by they came to the Babbling Brook where swarms of flies darted over the water. And every time a fly came near, Henry Jenny she snapped him up and divided him among the brood.

Well, while she was standing by the little brook, Billy Bunny came hopping along, with his knees on his shoulders and his striped candy cane in his right paw. For it was a lovely day in May and the little rabbit was as happy as two sticks and maybe three.

And then Tommy Turtle crawled by, with his little shell house on his back, and although it was the first of May Tommy Turtle wasn't going to move out of his house. Noiree-bus. But his house was moving with him. But that's another matter, you see.

"Wherever I go my house goes, too, and I never pay my rent," said Tommy Turtle.

"No matter how far I am sent."

"Har, ha," laughed the little rabbit, "you're a lucky fellow." And then Henry Jenny clucked to her little brood and said, "Look at Tommy Turtle with his house on his back. Isn't he lucky?"

And just then Mrs. Cow with her tinkling bell on her collar came by, and this is the song she began to sing:

"Oh the grass is nice and green, and the water in the brook is cool, and then, besides, I see my face most every time I look."

And then she rang her little bell over and over again, just to make a noise, I guess, and after that Billy Bunny hopped down to the Old Mill Pond to talk to Uncle Bullfrog.

New Uncle Bullfrog was a wise old gentleman frog. He knew lots and lots of things, but like a good many wise people he never said very much. He was usually too busy catching flies.

But when he saw Billy Bunny he took off his yellow rimmed spectacles, and said:

"How are you this lovely spring day, little rabbit?" and then he swallowed a fly that came too near, and after that he blinked his eyes and then he closed them to fool some other foolish fly who might happen to come by.

But of course he didn't close them tight shut, for then he wouldn't be able to see anything, you know. And after that Billy Bunny said, "I'm very much obliged, Uncle Bullfrog." And next time you shall hear what the little rabbit did.

Better Schools Wanted.

La Crosse.—Better school facilities, which includes better buildings, are being demanded by citizens of La Crosse through the Public School Welfare association. E. S. Hubbard, leader of the organization. Dangerous and unsanitary conditions have been discovered in the public structures and the association has decided to call a public mass meeting to bring pressure to bear upon the council so that new buildings may be obtained.

Manitowoc Aviator Killed.

Manitowoc.—Lieut. Joseph Mernusey, a down of Franklin boy, this county, and at one time a resident of Killbuckville, met death in the aviation service in France when following a fierce fight with the enemy. His machine was put out of commission and fell 1,000 feet. He had escaped death in two aeroplanes in which he was shot down by the enemy after having achieved a record for accounting for seven German planes. He was twice injured before he met his death in the fall with the third plane.

Will Serve Hot Lunches.

Appleton.—Eleven more rural schools have adopted the plan of serving hot lunches at noon, according to a report by Miss Loreta Meany, emergency home demonstration agent for the county.

Held Sunday School Meet.

Appleton.—About two hundred delegates are expected to attend the Northwestern district Sunday school convention which will be held in this city, Feb. 5 and 6. This district includes 125 counties.

Teachers Want Bonus.

Appleton.—Teachers of the second district are preparing to present a petition to the school board requesting a bonus. This action follows that taken in the third and fourth districts where bonuses of $40 and $75 respectively were granted. Schools of Appleton are run under the old district system.

Fitness and Literature.

There is nothing like a good, long illness for the cultivation of pure literature. It should not be too severe or needlessly painful, for then you may overshoot the mark and be too weary to read or be read to. It is possible to have too much of even the best things. But a proper, comfortable illness, that keeps you in bed, yet leaves you free to read; that banishes all the interruptions of life, the constitutional walks, the stupid visits, the annoying correspondence, the dressing and the undressing, and all the amenities of modern civilization, and allows you to lie at peace and read your fill, is among the best gifts of the gods. You soon forget to be sleepy and lazy; your mind displays an unwonted activity, and you become conscious of an insatiable craving for books.—Ohio State Journal.

"The White Lie"

"The White Lie" is a story of one woman and two men. The eternal triangle, yet no triangle at all, for the action revolves about a child. This bit of happy babyhood is the innocent cause of doubt and suspicion that brings about a fiendish plan in the mind of one man, the husband, to make the other man and the woman tortured victims of their own conscience.

Use of Fetters Ancient.

The use of fetters goes back to ancient times. Fetters were usually made of brass and also in pairs, the word being in the dual number. Iron was occasionally employed for the purpose. (Psalms 105:18; 140:3.)

Undoubtedly, "Living on Easy Street" is a slang phrase for financial prosperity, or comfortable circumstances. Origin unknown, probably American.

A WOMAN'S BUSINESS

THE "PLATONIC FRIEND."

Had Janet Stedman been a figure in action instead of a flesh-and-blood young woman of the twentieth century, and a business woman at that, with vigorous ideas of her own, she probably would never have laid eyes on Roy Nicol. A man who had taken her motoring—and kissed her! Moreover, a man who had calmly discussed with her afterward the reasons for his doing so. A man who had actually defended his action on the ground that most women liked being made love to and resented being thought "safe." And, above all, her own reasonable view of the matter and her friendly parting with Nicol at the end of the drive.

Janet realized she had followed an unconventional course. A conventional woman would have slipped Nicol at least screamed, or hesitating of the screws, would have frozen with cold glances and words, saying, "Never come near me again. You have insulted me beyond redemption."

But somehow Janet did not feel terribly insulted. In a measure she understood Roy's impetuous behavior. She even made excuses on the ground that by going for motoring rides with a man other than her own husband she had invited exactly what followed.

Nicol's defense of men in general interested Janet greatly. Wait, too, had used the same arguments in favor of his own sex. Perhaps they were right and she was wrong. Perhaps women DID receive just the treatment they bid for.

Janet felt like putting the theories to a test. If the situation were in her own hands there would be no harm in keeping Nicol's friendship—being pals with him; having him for a "platonically friendly" companion. Her relationship hugely. He had the charm and wisdom of a thorough man of the world. He was immensely rich, so she felt no qualms on the ground that he was not being able to afford choice entertainment. He was good looking, well educated, merry, free in every way—and considerate toward women. Yes, considerate toward women. For Janet felt he was a man who could reason with. A man with self-control, once a woman appealed to him for the exercise of that quality. And a man she could learn a lot from. Why should she not have Roy Nicol as a friend and comrade? Dan-ger? What danger? She had not the slightest feeling for Nicol except that of friendship. She felt he had the same attitude toward her.

Janet had a good deal to learn about man and woman psychology. She did not, for instance, consider the fact that a man's interest in a woman can appear to be deep and intense, while it is in reality the most superficial of emotions, coming from external causes alone, running in a swift course and dying down completely just as the woman's interest is beginning to dawn. In other words, "woman's love begins where man leaves off," as some writer has said.

Neither did she realize how quick and dry is the tender of man's grosser emotions, how easily it is lighted, how difficult to quench. Like most women she was not easily thrown from her poise. Women are emotional beings, readily touched by tragedy or pathos. But when it comes to resisting the temptations of the flesh, woman is far stronger than man. It is as if lacking man's physical strength, it had been made up to her in moral force and resisting power.

Janet found herself looking forward to her next meeting with Nicol. Especially since Wait had said: "I used to look askance at your tagging out with Nicol. But I've thought it over, and if you enjoy going, I think I can be big enough to trust you." She moved to the office and more work at the office was growing more and more taxing. Duties and responsibilities were crowding upon her. She felt a positive need of relaxation and diversion. Roy and his luxurious car offered the ideal delights. She would insist, Janet told herself, on having Walter go, too, whenever he would. The good-looking, it all the time and jollier for everybody.

But somehow it didn't work out that way. The next time Roy invited them out for a spin, Walter pleaded work and declined pleasantly—but firmly to go.

PTOMAIN POISONING

Potrefaction, decomposition or "rotting" of meat, fish or vegetable proteins (nitrogenous substances) by bacteria in the products of this bacterial action are ammonia, sulphuretted hydrogen (which gives overripe eggs their not-so-pleasant odor), carbon dioxide, and other gases, and ptomaines. Ptomaines are nitrogenous compounds resembling vegetable alkaloids such as strychnine and morphine in effect. Not all ptomaines are poisonous; many are without any appreciable effect on man.

Most cases of alleged ptomain poisoning are in reality infections with certain bacteria which may be present in meat or fish not kept properly refrigerated or in meat minced or chopped, as in hamburger steak and in sausage, since such meat is liable to additional infection from such handling, and the bacteria pervade the minced particles more readily than they do larger pieces.

One type of bacteria known to cause nausea, diarrhea, vomiting, abdominal cramps, extreme thirst, and fever some twenty-four hours, more or less, after eating the meat, is the Bacillus botulinus, most commonly in sausage.

A thick piece of sausage may be heated up to 153 degrees Fahrenheit in cooking, yet the temperature in the center of the sausage will not rise above body heat—which, of course, would be insufficient to kill the bacteria in the meat. The moral is, don't cook your sausage in large balls. Paratyphoid bacilli of two strains, called Paratyphoid-A and Paratyphoid-B, have been conveyed to man through meat that had been handled in an unclean manner in the slaughterhouse or in the butcher shop, especially when such meat is not kept constantly refrigerated. This infection may be carried to meat by flies from neighboring filth.

All of these different types of bacteria belong to one group, producing similar effects in man—intestinal inflammation resembling typhoid fever. After reasoning (or rather, poisoning) can be deduced only when all or nearly all eating of the suspected meat, fish or sausage are taken ill from a few hours to a week after. Those who vomit soon after eating the infected food generally escape with the slightest illness.

Sausage should be soaked in small pieces and very thoroughly cooked. Hamburg steak should be ground only immediately before it is to be cooked. Canned meats, fish or poultry vegetables should be consumed shortly after the can is opened and not kept long, either in the can or in another receptacle, unless in a refrigerator.

A filthy market or store, served by unclean clerks, is a menace to the health of every customer.

Dinobites and Dinobites Acid I have had diabetes nearly three years for which I was discharged from the army as totally disabled. The urine has never contained sugar free and often contains diastase acid. Is there anything besides sodium bicarbonate a diabetic can take to neutralize diastase acid? Do you advise for diabetes? (A. H.)

ANSWER—Perhaps a diminution of the amount of fat in the diet would best overcome the diastase acid. Citrate of soda in rather larger doses than you take of bicarbonate of soda would be a suitable alkali; and at least a change. The diet food you mention are all right, but quite an extravagant and needless luxury, in my opinion. There need be no mystery about regulating the quantities of the different food elements a diabetic can safely take in his diet.

Afternoon teas are being revived in many circles. The tea is served in small cups with light fancy cake sandwiches and perhaps bonbons.

The tea may be poured at small table in the living room with the hostess presiding. Her daughter or an intimate friend may assist.

Otherwise it may be brought fresh from the dining room and served to the guests by a maid.

It is quite correct to offer a second cup of tea, but as always it is very bad taste to insist upon a guest taking it if he has refused.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married four years and my life has been happy with one exception. I used to spend my own money and was free to do as I pleased. I have had to ask my husband for every cent I have had, and he would not give it to me without finding out just exactly how much I needed. If I happened to have change left from some purchase which did not cost what I expected, he would ask for it.

Now I am having more trouble than ever because things cost so much. He judges by the way things cost when we were first married and if I ask for money for shoes he gives me the amount that I had before prices went up. He also gives me a dollar every day to spend on the table prices went up. He also gives me a dollar every day to spend on the table prices went up.

At night he asks if there is any change. Sometimes there is, as there are only two of us to cook for. Do you think he should have that change? I think that I should be entitled to some amount to spend any way I want to. I haven't bought myself a soda or candy in three years. What shall I do?

UNHAPPY WIFE.

Keep an account book of exactly what you spend. In one part list the amount you spend on the table, and in another that which you spend on your clothes. After a month or two show your husband what you have done and say that you must have an allowance to cover your expenses so that you will not have to ask for every penny you have. You are certainly entitled to this and should have a just share of what he is earning.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am sixteen years of age and have known a boy for the last five or six years. I have gone to school with him for several years and then we were separated by changing schools and have not been friends for the last three years.

He is a very polite and mannerly boy and my parents like him on that account. I know he liked me because he happened to speak about me to other boys in my brother's presence. He has asked me to go to his folks' house and other places, but I didn't

THE SAD STORY OF LAY-LO.

(Written by Go-Hang-Ti in 441 B. C.—translated in 441 A. D.)

Once upon a time in the province of Bing-Bing, near the river Bo, lived a pretty maiden named Lay-Lo. She was sweet as the cherry blossom and shy as the shoo-deer.

To no man had Lay-Lo ever raised her almond eyes, and her timidity was the chief of her charms. The admiration of the men of the whole village. To the latter, it was a most precious virtue.

Then came the day when a handsome white man from over the seas with eyes blue as the sky—hair red as sunset. And the glow of his hair warmed Lay-Lo so that she looked up and beheld a man for the first time.

Slowly but surely, did Lay-Lo come to adore the white man, and he wooed her secretly and by night, which was against the imperial decree of Chu-Chu, the Chou Son of the Sun.

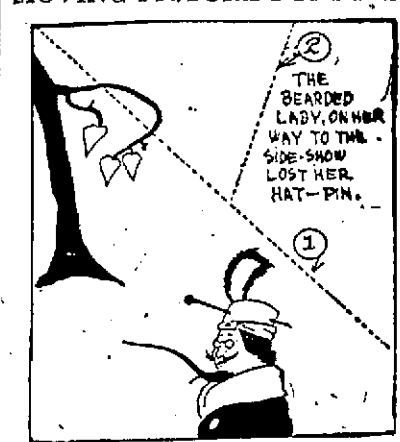

And secretly did the wily white man wed the lovely Lay-Lo which when known, caused Ki-Yi to turn his daughter from him in pagoda.

For many days did the love of Lay-Lo and the white man from over the seas run smoothly and without a bump until a man from over the seas—a woman called a sou-tell-jenk (suffragette) came to Bing-Bing and who instructed Lay-Lo in the ways of the white man—woman and when the white man came home one night to his timid, shy Lay-Lo, behold! She was timid and shy no longer and she refled him with a teapot and made him pick up the pieces and glue them together.

Now, the white husband had never meant to be husband to Lay-Lo for very long. She was just to be his wife until he was in Bing-Bing, and when he would go across the seas he would marry the white woman of his own kind.

So, that night, he had packed up his clothes and he was leaving China forever, when Lay-Lo caught him. "Yo gong ding bling bling plink-plunk!" (You gong-hanged blinkety-blank punk!) was the word she heard. And the white man did come back, though not by his honorable intentions, and Lay-Lo locked him up in the tea-house, while she went with the white man—woman, stump-speak-ing for herself as mayoress of Bing-Bing.

And the white man—husband ended his days in a China factory.

THE ECONOMY BAKING POWDER CALUMET

Calumet possesses the farthest-reaching baking powder economy. It is the most economical leavening agent. It saves in more ways—and makes more important savings than most other baking powders.

You save when you buy it. The price is moderate—it leaves you money over the cost of high-priced brands for purchase of other articles. Costs but little more than cheap powders—far more valuable in quality.

You save when you use it. Possesses twice the ordinary raising force—you use only half as much as is ordinarily required.

You save materials it is used with. Calumet never fails with any kind of recipe or with any kind of flour—always produces perfectly raised, delicious bakings.

You'll notice a great difference when you use Calumet. Calumet produces light, sweet, wholesome, flaky bakings. You will notice with some of the cheaper brands the bakings are soggy, heavy, dark in color, and sometimes have a bitter taste.

Used by leading chefs and domestic scientists, and by more housewives than any other brand. Made in the world's largest and finest baking powder plant. Best by test. A trial proves it.

The Cougar Crouches.

To an Indian mother, lying in a squalid tepee in the forest, once given three sons at a birth, one of the three died in infancy. Two lived to become the most famous leaders the terrible inhabitants of the forest wilderness ever knew. As one of the two grew to manhood and forced his way to the head of his tribe by his daring, his cunning, his matchless eloquence and power, the red man, with his love of imagery in names, chose the cougar, the panther, the great cat of the forest, as the fitting title of the chief whose lightest word was law.

The cougar! It was from this demoniac beast that the Shawnee chief received his name—Tecumseh, "the cougar about to spring."

A Yankee surveyor predicted one day an eclipse of the sun. Tecumseh's brother, on account of his frequent drunken babbings, had been dubbed "The Open Door," but a glimmer of shrewdness lighted up his rum-sodden brain at the words of the white man; he returned to his tribe, and saying to all who would listen that he had been given a message from the Great Manitou himself, prophesied that on a certain day the sky would be darkened—a sign that he, "The Open Door," was divine and was henceforth to lead his people. They laughed; but the darkness came as he had foretold, and from that day he was looked up to by every warrior in the forest as the greatest of conjurers. He was no longer called "The Open Door," but Elkaskatawa, "The Loud Voice," and his voice in council was the voice of authority. But years had now passed; and he prayed, in secret

Tells Aged People How To Get More Strength

Here is another link in the chain of evidence to prove that our famous cod liver and iron tonic Vinol creates strength for feeble old people.

Mr. Nelson H. Pease of the National Soldiers Home, Tennessee, says: "I am 74 years of age and in a weak, debilitated condition, poor appetite and did not sleep well. Vinol gave me a good appetite. I sleep well, and it has built me up so I feel stronger and better in every way. I strongly recommend Vinol for such conditions as I believe it prolongs life for old people." Flower of France Freely Offered for Freedom's Sake

Six millions of the youth and chivalry of France have been offered that Freedom might live. The world will ever remember this heroic sacrifice and outpouring of the blood of its youth. It is likewise not unkind of the great service to the world rendered by the French peasants who have given it a perfect remedy for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, relieving, it is said, incalculable suffering, saving thousands of lives and preventing innumerable surgical operations. The ingredients are imported and placed on sale in this country over the name of May's Wonderful Remedy by Geo. F. May, a leading Chicago chemist. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Yet it is a consolation to know that even serious and long established troubles of this kind are generally overcome promptly and completely by the use of Resinol Ointment.

Quicker results as a whole may be obtained by first bathing the affected parts with Resinol Soap and hot water. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap may be purchased at all druggists.

for another sign to "bolster up his wavering strength."

The white men came farther and farther into the wilderness, cleared their cabins in greater and greater numbers in the red man's forest, butted and fought larger and larger territories from the stupid savage, who reached out eagerly for a handful of toys, a jug of the white man's fiery drink, and gave in return the countless acres of his hunting ground. But now for years his dumb resentment grew more and more bitter. To Tecumseh and his brother, Elkaskatawa, the Prophet, the red men looked impatiently for a leadership which should restrain the encroaching settler, or which might even regain for them their lost lands.

The young warriors could not wait for council; here and there they struck down a settler, took a woman captive, dashed out the brains of a child, and hurried back into the forest. To Harrison in Vincennes came Tecumseh for council and promised redress; then slipped away to the South, down the great river, to the tribes along the Gulf, to implore them to stand with their brothers of the North against the white man's advance. The Prophet meanwhile remained at his village, 120 miles north of Vincennes, and spent the time in incantations and ominous mutterings; and the little town of Vincennes lay in anxious uncertainty on the banks of the Wabash river, down which came the news of the Prophet's restless plotting.

The little village presented a scene of the most unusual activity. Here and there in vacant fields the various companies of the territorial militia were drilling—four companies of mounted men and eight of infantry—a force of some six hundred men, which Harrison had caused to be assembled hastily.

Women and children stood watching the evolutions of the volunteers. The French inhabitants chattered away in tremendous excitement. As far as military drill and accoutrement were concerned, the men were ridiculously awkward and untrained. They could not keep step to save their souls, and only one of the twelve companies made any pretense at a uniform; this one was the company commanded by Spier Spencer of Corydon. These were yellow hunting shirts trimmed with red leather; they were promptly dubbed "the Yellow Jackets," and were marked men. But the rest wore whatever clothes they were possessed of in their daily life—low jeans or flannel-woolsey, or the hunter's dress of tanned deer-skin; and each man carried the rifle of his choice, firearms of every make and of any length of barrel.

One morning was enlivened by a shooting match. Someone got a white-wood plank, and pacing off 40 yards, propped it up firmly. A circle ten inches in diameter was smeared on the board with wet powder, and in the center of this black spot a bit of white paper, the size of a dollar, was pinned. One after another of the awkward militiamen stepped to the line and fired, seemingly without pausing to aim. Not a man failed to send his bullet into the white. Then the target was moved to 80 yards' distance, then a hundred; and the deadly accuracy continued, as the better marksmen took their turns. And then they tossed pieces of wood into the air. These, too, came down pierced by the mischievous bullets.

The afternoon passed in the same

state of suppressed excitement. The men loitered around the shady side of the taverns and chewed their tobacco silently. The long, hot hours dragged by. At sunset they heard the bugle at Fort Knox, the stockade inclosure three miles up the river, sound faintly the end of the day.

Night came on and a group of men gradually gathered on the benches and the grass in front of the Jefferson house, as the tavern of Parmenas Beckes, bearing on its signboard a staring portrait of the statesman, was grandly called. They talked in low tones, and David, on the edge of the crowd, could not distinguish their words. He knew, however, that most of the leaders of the town were there: Wash Johnson, the old postmaster, with his deep voice booming out at intervals; Henry Hurst and Henry Van der Burgh, the judges; Benjamin Parker, more recently appointed to the bench; old John Small, who had been sheriff twenty years before; and scalped with his own hand marauding Indians whom his posse had pursued and captured; Peter Jones, who had seen the error of his ways as a tavern keeper and had reformed and become the territorial auditor and the custodian of the infant public library; the hot-headed Virginian, Thomas Randolph, scarred with the knife wounds received in his row with "Sawney" McIntosh, the defamer of Harrison; the two sawbones, "Doc" Elias McNamee and "Doc" Jake Kuykendall; and a dozen more. Francois Vigo, the old Spanish merchant, who had seen George Rogers Clark storm Vincennes 32 years before, sat at David's side, a fine old fellow of seventy-five.

The only light visible was that in the shop of the printer, Elihu Stour, industriously aiding his apprentice at the types or wiping his ink fingers to examine a proof pulled on the broad hand-press. The moths and insects fluttered around his candle; and the sweat poured off his forehead; but the Western Sun was due for publication on the morrow and he meant to see it through.

David listened with closer attention when he overheard Governor Harrison address a square-jawed young man in the uniform of a captain in the United States army, telling him that he had just written to Fustis, the secretary of war, at Washington, and had commended to the department the work of the young captain in transforming the little fort near Vincennes from a place wretchedly neglected into an adequate stronghold. Vigo whispered to David that the boy was Capt. Zachary Taylor from Kentucky, who had been placed in command at Fort Knox but a few weeks previously.

"I trust," went on Harrison, "that Mr. Bustis will be thoughtful enough to bring my letter to the attention of your uncle, President Madison. I would like him to know that we are well pleased with your work."

Taylor flushed through his tan with pleasure. He would have liked to say that he hoped that Harrison might some day occupy the presidential chair, but he was as tactful as most of the men of the frontier; far less would he have permitted himself to dream that the great office might be his own.

William Henry Harrison, Vincennes was 118 years old; the man thirty-eight. There had never been anything commonplace in the existence of place or man. Each had already had a history whose telling must move the heart more than with a trumpet.

The face of the man was the face of the soldier—strong, resolute, proud, indomitable. But it was likewise the face of the man of the people, the man in whom they trusted for his calm patience and his warm friendliness. With what unflinching devotion had they come to rely on him!

He was a warm admirer of the democratic Jefferson and he was an aristocrat of the new territory. Steeped in the classic scholarship of the Old Dominion, the son of a signer of the Declaration of Independence, at eighteen he had chosen to leave behind him the culture of the older states and to plunge into the rude but generous wilderness. At twenty-eight he was governor of the Indiana territory.

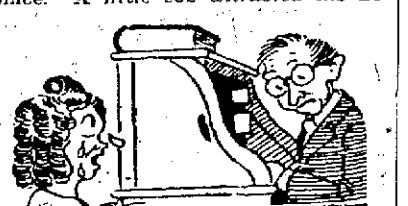

At thirty, master of an empire of 150,000,000 acres, ruler over a province twice as large as England and Ireland, larger, indeed, than all of France.

Within the ten years following his appointment as governor, the negotiator, with absolute power, of treaties which added to the new nation fifty millions of acres, a domain large as England and Scotland combined. At thirty-one, holding in his hand for five months the destinies of a tract of 250,000 square miles, an imperial province greater than any other one man ever controlled in the history of the United States, before or since.

DINNER STORIES

The lawyer was sitting at his desk absorbed in the preparation of a brief. So intent was he on his work that he did not hear the door as it was pushed gently open, nor see the early head that was thrust into his office. A little sob attracted his no-dice, and, turning, he saw a face that was streaked with tears and told plainly that feelings had been hurt. "Well, my little man, did you want to see me?"

"Are you a lawyer?"

"Yes. What do you want?"

"I want—and there was a resolute ring in his so-called Irish patois. The man sowed discord everywhere but in Connemara."

"The one part of Ireland that has always kept peaceful and loyal and has always done its full duty is Connemara."

The poet paused, then went on with a smile. "For in Connemara, friends, the peasants don't speak English, and the patriots can't speak Irish."

SABBATH DAY IN DISPUTE

Really No Definite Information as to When Its Observance Had Its First Institution.

There is no definite information as to when the observance of the first day of the week was substituted by the Christians for that of the seventh day, the ancient Jewish Sabbath. It undoubtedly arose among the earlier practices of the Christian church, and was regarded as the fittest day to be held sacred, because in the words of one of the fathers, "It is the first day in which God changed darkness, and the same day, also, Jesus Christ, our Savior, rose from the dead." The several references in the New Testament to the Lord's day, and to the "first day of the week," will, of course, be borne in mind. Various additional reasons taken from the Old Testament were advanced by others of the early fathers in support of the observance of this day. The first law, either ecclesiastical or civil, by which the sabbatical observance of Sunday is known to have been ordained is an edict of Constantine, A. D. 321, forbidding all work but necessary husbandry on the already "venerable Sunday." In the Theodosian code it is enjoined that "on Sunday, rightfully designated by our ancestors as the Lord's day, all lawsuits and public business shall cease." Since the ninth century Sunday has been a thoroughly established institution in Christian countries as a day of rest and religious exercises, and one exempt from any occupations of purely secular character, except such as were necessary.

LITTLE CHANGE IN BRITANNY

Land of Romance Today Much the Same as It Has Been Through the Centuries.

Brittany since the early times of history has been the land of romance, saints and archbishops, knights and ladies, hobgoblins and wizards, crusaders and fairies. All of these are with beautiful impartiality scattered through the antique records of l'Armorique, as this region used to be called. Even the fabled sunken city of Is and the lost continent of Atlantis are supposed to be off its coast. First cousins of the Irish and the Welsh, the inhabitants are by tradition, birth and character a race apart, silent, superstitious and devout and obstinate. Fine sailors and tillers of the soil, the Bretons have remained much as their earlier ancestors were. Their native costumes prevail throughout all villages and farmhouses. The men in blue blouses and straw hats trimmed with long black velvet ribbons, and longcloth waistcoats, embroidered in bright colors, loaded with buttons, sit beside many a wayside tavern, and the white headresses and heavy black serge costumes of the women are the same in cut and quality as in the days of the famous Queen Anne of Brittany.

The Wreck of Faith

By REV. J. H. RALSTON, D. D.
Secretary of Correspondence Department,
Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—When the son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?—Luke 18:8.

These words have been interpreted as meaning that when Jesus Christ returns to this world that he will find no faith. They have been interpreted as being simply an inquiry, because of the teachings of the Bible and present world conditions as to faith at that time. In either case we have a wreck in view, whether real or imaginary.

Faith may be understood as the body of Christian truth given once for all in the first century, embracing the fundamentals of our Christian system—the infallibility of the Holy Scriptures, the deity of Christ, the lost state of man by nature, the only hope of recovery by the atonement of Christ on the cross, etc. This may be considered from the standpoint of the church in its visible form or that of the individual, personal interest in the subject being emphasized with reference to the latter rather than with the former. The aspect of the former, because it determines the aspect of the latter, shall have fuller treatment.

Faith has had a varied experience. For some three centuries it was held with comparative fidelity. Then the clouds of paganism and lust for embracing Christianity as an element of political life began to gather. For some centuries there was great darkness. In the period of the Crusades there were flickering lights. Then darkness came over Christian thought until the days of Huss in Bohemia and Wickliffe in England. Persecution in Bohemia and indifference in England soon brought another season of darkness, until in Germany, under Martin Luther, the light arose that has shone for four hundred years, and accounts for what we have of the true faith today.

Is the faith of the church, as such, a wreck today? Do we find all sails set and drawing, bound confidently for a distant port? Or do we see that church hesitating, staggering in the midst of besetting teachings as to fundamentals like the ship with contrary winds and laboring hard to avoid the rocks on which it may be a total wreck?

Is it not true that some denominations of Christians while still clinging to orthodox creeds have abandoned those creeds in their teachings? Faithful men in some denominations are now crying to their brethren to suppress many of the church publications as they are distinctly infidel in their teachings. Is it not true that many hungry souls go to church and come away hungry because they have not heard the Gospel of Jesus Christ?

How about the individual? Not long ago a young man, who was a graduate of one of America's greatest universities and was finishing his second year in an orthodox theological seminary, said to the writer that he had lost his faith, had no confidence in the Bible, did not accept the deity of Jesus Christ, and was thoroughly unhappy. This is an extreme case, but the writer has had many young people of liberal education give substantially the same testimony.

What is the somewhat remote reason for this situation as to religious belief? We must go to the land of the Bible. The work of corrupting the Bible had progressed until nearly all German universities and theological schools had repudiated the faith of Luther, although clinging to his name. Learned men said certain results had been attained and these results discredited the Bible. With amazing rapidity this conclusion took hold in England and Scotland and our own country. Destructive biblical criticism and Darwinian evolution swept over nearly all our great universities and our Bible was in the scrap heap. Those of us who have watched the trend of German theological teaching, have observed a tremendous advance since the days of Schleiermacher, Baur and Hoffman to the days of Kuenen, Graf and Cornill. It was bad enough with the former, but with the latter and the final plunge was made by men like Nettzsche, who utterly ignored the Bible and deduced God himself. Is it any wonder that Germany is suffering today, and is it much less wonder that the German world is suffering likewise? When will men learn wisdom?

For the individual, especially respecting young people, the old-fashioned religion must come back. The old religious home must be restored. How many professedly religious homes are religious wrecks!

Back to God! Back to Jesus Christ! To thus get back we must get back to the Bible. Thank God it is being published as never before and the demand for it is beyond the supply. Thank God for this fact as to the hunger of the people for truth.

METHODS OF AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION SURPRISE GERMANS

Detachment of American army of occupation passing Kaiser Platz in Treves, Germany.

The considerate though firm methods employed by the American army of occupation in controlling the affairs of the German towns and people in the occupied territory is a source of constant surprise to the Germans, who knew only of the domineering, overbearing methods of Prussian military leaders. The situation in Treves, the oldest city of Germany, now held by American forces, is typical. The American officials deal with the de facto authorities there. The workmen's council maintains a commission there and the officers who had been handling the city's affairs were left in charge. The daily life of the people has not been altered or hampered. Those who have business out of the city are given permission to leave. One thing is distinctly understood, however. That is, that on the least sign of any treachery or disturbance the Americans will handle the situation with drastic measures.

THE GIVING OF THE MANNA.

That march of mystery—Israel's journey through the wilderness. A desert anywhere has a fascinating weirdness. Absence of shade, water, and life make it a phantom place. In these characteristics the Sinai Peninsula surpasses all others. No wonder the Hebrews called it great and terrible, a howling wilderness.

Such unnatural environment can not fail to have its powerful influence. The traveler over that route of Egypt and Arabia, and even already in the wilderness, the faith of the Hebrews should have been more buoyant. Fear is the very worst of epidemic. In the shortest possible time, the whole nation was incited. As always happens under such conditions, the people very much overrated their past advantages. So we find them sighing for the flesh-pots of Egypt. As also happens, they underrated past evils. The bitterness of the bondage was forgotten by the happy release from it. And so the whole congregation murmured against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness. This melancholy stampede was a real disgrace. Had they taken time to consider, they would have found ground for hope. The situation was really not so desperate. The Hebrews brought with them large flocks. They must have found pasture. From this source they would derive milk, flesh for food, and that, too, without diminishing their herds, using only the natural increase. Other tribes found sufficient means of subsistence in that locality. There are spots even to-day, in that very desert, where the Redoubt still grow and reap. Again, the Israelites could supply many wants by purchase from passing caravans. It would do them no harm to go on half rations for a while, if necessary. Again, they were not always wandering about. They remained months, and even years, in certain localities. So the situation of these emigrants was far from desperate. The long-suffering patience of God had a remarkable example in this instance. A gracious redress of the people's grievance is promised. The last word of the people's complaint is "hunger." God's first word in reply is, "I will rain bread from heaven."

With reference to the nature and origin of manna, it will be found best to take the middle course between the "bodily literal" and the "embellishments of wonder-loving legends." There is in this very locality a natural production still called manna by the Arabs. It is a sweet and sticky substance, which must be collected before sunrise, for only then is it found in a coagulated state. It dissolves as soon as the sun shines on it. This natural product seems to be the physical basis of one of the surprising means of sustenance of the wilderness. How far it may have idealized by a grateful memory, it is hard to say.

There is a fault-finding, however which is admirable. It has the noble quality of moral earnestness. It has a definite end in view. It seeks the correction of existing evils. This is the fault-finding of the pilgrim nation in the wilderness. He had had forty years' discipline in desert-life study in philology, an illustration or how words have their origin. These people found on the ground one morning a globe of the coagulated juice of the ark. They had never seen it before, naturally they cried, in their language, "Manna!"—in our language, "What is it?"—and that is what it was (in name) always afterward for them—manna.

A curious calculation, of course hypothetical, indicates that 24,466 bushels of manna were required every day by the hosts of Israel in the wilderness, making a total of 270,002,600 bushels for the forty years of wandering. Yet the immense store never fell short a bushel.

The Jewish tradition that a pot of manna was kept in the ark is probably an error. They were directed to set the pot of manna (literally) before, not in the ark. It is not necessary to suppose that it was filled with miraculously produced manna. The vessel itself stood for the "contents."

The desert is a camera. It photographs and preserves. The face of cultivated countries and the names of civilized nations are in a perpetual state of change, but the desert and its inhabitants are alike unchangeable. So we can know by what we see there to-day how Israel looked in the wilderness, and what its supreme and inveterate error, after all, was not only that he distrusted God's providence as to his food, but that he regarded that food itself as the chief thing he was to live for. But this is not the error of Israel, it is the error of humanity. It was this Jesus confronted when he said, "Say not what shall we eat?" And, again,

KOSHKONONG

Koshkonong, Jan. 28.—Miss Adeline Gray Miss Selma Funzel, and Mrs. W. H. Miller went to Janesville Saturday afternoon.

Miss Helen Hebel of La Prairie spent over Sunday of last week with the Robinson family.

Miss Jennie Dean, supervising teacher from Janesville, spent Tuesday at Otter Creek school.

Mr. Bean of Oshkosh was here Saturday looking over the milking short-horn herds.

Miss Punzell and pupils purchased a large bell for the school and A. G. Shuman has been engaged to install it. After paying 100 per cent to the Red Cross fund, they decided to spend the rest for the bell.

Joe Krause, sawed the year's supply of wood for the school on Saturday.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Arthur Wellesley, first Duke Wellington, was born probably on the 20th of April, 1769, in Dublin. He was an unpromising boy, and his mother, deciding that he was "ugly boy, Arthur," sent him to a military academy at Angers, France. He entered the army in 1787 and rose rapidly, seeing much service, until his great opportunity came when Napoleon returned from Elba and Wellington was summoned to command the forces of the English and allies in Belgium, in co-operation with the Prussians under Blücher. The battles of Ligny and Quatre Bras were followed by the battle of Waterloo, June 18, 1815, which finally shattered the power of Napoleon. Wellington was buried in St. Paul's cathedral, November 18, 1852.

ALL-STARS LOSE TO EDGERTON IN FAST GAME; SCORE 24-19

Graesslin and Hager Star for Local Five in Contest at Edgerton.

Playing under difficulties, the "Y" All-Stars lost to Edgerton last night by a score of 24 to 19 in a fast basketball game staged in the Tobacco City high school gym. The Stars were handicapped by the rules regarding the walls of the gym, and were not able to accustom themselves to them until the last quarter, when Edgerton's lead was too big to overcome.

Graesslin's stellar guarding was the feature of the second half. Hager at the pivot position for the local five put up a strong game, holding his man to three baskets, and getting five markers himself.

The game opened with a great burst of speed by Edgerton. The Tobacco City bunch ran up ten points in the first few minutes of play, while the Stars were able to ring only one free throw. They soon woke up and cut loose, counting three times. The half ended 12 to 7 in favor of Edgerton.

The Stars took the lead at the beginning of the second half, when Eulmann dropped in a ringer followed by Hager and Babcock. Three baskets by Edgerton gave them the lead again, but Hager showed a fast and accurate shot, putting the Stars one point behind. Then the Edgerton gang broke loose and ran the score up to 24.

The scores and lineup:

All-Stars Edgerton
Putnam Scofield
Babcock Rausch
Hager Gessert
Luebke, Marko Peterson
Graesslin, Zahn Ogden
Field Goals—Hager 5, Putnam 2, Babcock 2, Ogden 3, Gessert 3, Peterson 2, Scofield 1. Free throw—Hager.

Tomorrow night the All-Stars are scheduled to play the Badgers, a team of local stars, and Monday night they will clash with the Senior "Y" team. The Beloit Winnebago will be brought here for a game February 3. The Stars are planning to get the Edgerton team here next week for a return game.

JANESVILLE HIGHS TO MEET OREGON TONIGHT

What promises to be a game fully as fast and thrilling as the one played at Madison will be staged by the Janesville high school basketball squad, this evening, when the Oregon aggregation will invade the city. The Oregon team is credited with having a remarkably fast five, and have won several games this year from strong teams.

With Captain Sprackling, forming the majority of the team, and Ted and Nuzum assisting him, there is no doubt but that the boys will pile up a good sized score. The Janesville guards Powers, Decker and Fisher will have to play a merry game, if they are to hold the Oregon forwards scoreless, but if they show up as good tonight as in previous games, they will have no difficulty.

Captain Sprackling and Coach Crabtree are confident of victory, and with the entire squad in the pink of condition, the game should go to the local bunch. The lineup for the blue five tonight will probably be: Sprackling, Nuzum, right forward; Sprackling, left forward; Powers, right guard; Foshier, left guard.

A preliminary game is also scheduled for the evening.

Cubs Will Train at Pasadena, Cal.; Mitchell Must Release Six Men

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Preparations for the spring training trip to Pasadena, Cal., are under way at headquarters of the Chicago Nationals. Manager Fred Mitchell has started to reduce the squad from thirty-four to twenty-eight players. Tom Clark, veteran catcher, formerly with Cincinnati, was the first player released. Mitchell declined to name the other players he intends to dispose of as some of them may be traded.

BASEBALL CHIEF WILL QUIT RACING GAME

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 31.—William Knebelkamp, the new president of the Louisville club of the American Association, may dispose of his share of thoroughbreds and retire from the turf. The majority of the horses are 2-year-olds. The list includes Dixie Flyer, Guaranteed and others. Because of his baseball interests, Mr. Knebelkamp said, he would have very little time to devote to racing.

SOME WAR-BORN TIPS FOR BASEBALL MOGULS

THREE FAST BOUTS IN MILWAUKEE TONIGHT

Milwaukee, Jan. 31.—In the Cream City Athletic club, and in the evening, three fast bouts will be staged. The first bout is between the local stars, the Cream City Athletic club, and the second bout is between the local stars, the Cream City Athletic club, and the third bout is between the local stars, the Cream City Athletic club.

Bartfeld, writers say, met Greb at his own game of give and taken and tore the defense of his heavier opponent to shreds.

Reports from the Ortego-McTigue scrap in Boston, assert that the coast wonder used the same style of bore in and take a few wallops to land in return. All of which means a slashing go when these two speed-demons gather tonight in the same ring.

Young Dennis, who is matched with Otto Wallace in the semi-final of three 10-round bouts which make up the card, does not hold his opponent lightly in spite of the technical knockout which Pinky Mitchell secured against Wallace recently. Dennis watched Wallace polish off Battling Rudy in less than two rounds Monday night.

"This kid is no slouch," said Dennis after the bout. "His build was against him in his battle with Mitchell. He is enough to fill any one's hands who is his same weight and height. I can lick him though."

Matt Ade, who created such an excellent impression in his fight with Ivan Blazetter, writer, cyclist, is scheduled to stage the curtain raiser with Barney Griffin.

Close Games Feature "Y" Pool Tournament; Schaller Beats Fieri

Barriage's speedy basketball squad triumphed over Bick's five at the Y. M. C. A. last night winning by the score of 22 to 11. In the second game of the evening, the high school league Newman's cohorts defeated Ambrose's team, 20 to 10. Fast passing and close guarding featured both games. Physical Director Craig refereed.

After keeping the score of the first game the scorekeeper quit his post and there was no official record of the second contest. The result of the Barriage-Bick game:

Field goals—Barriage, 4; Tall, 4; Smith, Crowley, Bick, Grubb, Bannison.

Free throws—Barriage, 2; Tall, 2; Bick, 1.

A MINOR DIFFICULTY

The minor league magnates have issued an ultimatum to the major leagues that the draft as conducted at present must be abolished. The minors want the right to sell their stars to whichever club they choose and want a definite purchase price of $7,500 set. They also demand the adoption of a proposed system and price schedule for the return of players to the minors.

KING'S KNIGHTS ARE EASY PREY FOR COLTS

PEOPLE IN EARTH'S INTERIOR?

Man of Science Believed There Were, and Sought Funds to Make, an Investigation.

On November 10, 1922, one of the most peculiar petitions ever presented to congress was brought before that body of lawmakers, which was none other than a request from John Cleves Symmes, asking that aid be given him to make a voyage to the interior of the globe, which he believed to be inhabitable. He was permitted to lecture before Union college, at which he expounded his theory, which, however, was met with universal ridicule.

Notwithstanding which he was greatly respected as a man. He held that all planetary bodies, including the earth, are composed of concentric spheres, open at their poles. In one of his memoirs he thus illustrates his conception: "With dividers describe a plane of matter of loose texture, and in the center add a very small circle; draw a line through the center. It is evident that either half of the inner circle, being almost equally surrounded by matter, must be very little gravitated centerwise, so being suspended, only a rotary motion is needed to throw it compactly toward the outer circle. This being admitted it follows that half way from the outlet to the inner side of this circle of matter thus thrown out, in like rarity, suspension or balance of gravity should prevail, and hence a disposition to concentric circles; therefore it follows that successive similar subdivisions should exist, gradually lessening in force and quantity. By applying this principle to the earth I find the necessity of hollow concentric spheres."

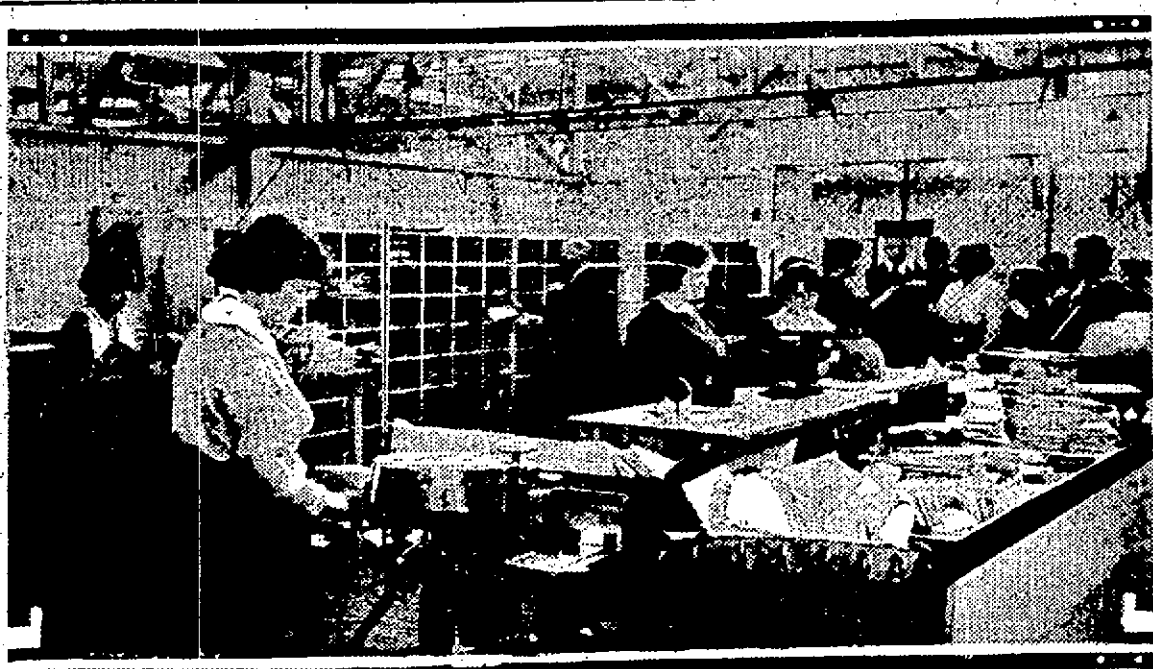

Question of Ownership.

A little boy, explaining about some new neighbors next door, said: "Well, those two oldest children belong to him and those two little girls belong to her, and they both own the baby!"

SUPPS.
Fish Soup—If the fish is a little large, use back bone and belly piece to make a pot of soup. One uses clams and oysters, then why not fish? Boil the pieces in a quart of water for 30 minutes; strain and pick the meat from bone. To the stock add: One cup finely sliced potatoes, one-quarter cup finely cut onion, parsley and dried thyme to taste, salt and pepper; one tablespoon of soft butter substitute and one tablespoon of flour, rubbed together, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoons catsup, one cup hot milk. Boil potatoes and onions until tender, then add seasoning and flour; boil five minutes. Just before serving add catsup and milk and the picked fish. Dumplings may be added.

Potato Soup—One quart potatoes, one cup finely cut onion, two cups finely cut carrots, two cups milk, one tablespoon oleomargarine, two teaspoons finely cut parsley, one-eighth teaspoon white pepper, one paprika, one cup bread crumbs, one teaspoon salt, wash, pare and dice the potatoes; put in saucepan and cover with boiling water; add onion and carrot; boil three minutes; add milk, butter or oleomargarine and flour, which has been rubbed smooth with the butter; boil three minutes; add salt, pepper and paprika; serve with buttered toast.

Tomato Bisque—Two cups tomato, two cups milk, one tablespoon butter substitute, one tablespoon flour, pinch baking soda, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon paprika, four teaspoons grated cheese. Put the tomato on to boil; boil five minutes, then add soda, salt and pepper; strain into the boiling milk, which has been thickened with the butter and flour, which have been rubbed together. Boil two minutes. After serving, sprinkle one teaspoon of the grated cheese on each cup of soup; serve at once. The cheese makes a pleasant change and adds extra food value.

DID YOU KNOW THAT?
Apples, dried prunes and raisins are among the cheapest fruits. If anybody has to go without milk it should never be the children. One should always keep a vessel of water in a steam-heated room. Ninety per cent of the heat from an open fire goes up the chimney. Sometimes an entire room can be shut off for the winter to save fuel. Rice, hominy, grits or rolled oats make excellent stuffing for chickens. Boiled beans can be served with a salad dressing into which has been put a hard-boiled egg. The yolk rubbed into the dressing and the white chopped over the whole. Dampened newspaper can be utilized to save dust when sweeping, either by tearing in little bits and sprinkling about the floor or laying under the door crack to keep dust from flying into the next room. Marking linen is an easy matter if you first starch the linen and iron it very smooth.

SOME CURES FOR INSOMNIA.

A letter from a friend who was kind enough to like the thoughts on "Sleep and sleeplessness" which I scribbled down for you last week, wants me to tell you of his cure when the lessons in insomnia become more frequent than are needed for the purposes of sympathy.

"I go out," he says, "just before I go to bed, for as long a tramp as I can spare the time for. Then I come in and hustle my clothes off and hustle myself into bed before the effect of the air has had time to wear off." This certainly sounds very good to me, and I shall try it if I am forewarned of sleeplessness. As a rule, I don't suspect the danger until I get into bed and find my mind unexpectedly imitating a race horse instead of relaxing itself to slumber.

Fresh Air Helps Make You Drowsy.

Of course the fresh air always helps to make one drowsy, and I think that getting physically tired must be a help, for, with me at least, sleeplessness seems to be a state of when the mind is keyed up and unable to relax and the body isn't quite tired, enough to drag it off into slumber against its will, and a walk both soothes the mind and makes the body healthily tired.

While we are on the subject, I am going to pass on my own special cures, though I think I have mentioned them before and though they are very simple and obvious, but if a single person finds relief from wakeful hours through them, surely it will be worthwhile.

Take warm milk before going to bed, or, if you find yourself wakeful, in the night.

Have Something to Nibble On.

If not convenient to have warm milk during the night, at least keep something to nibble beside your bed. You need to get the blood away from the head and giving your stomach work to do accomplishes that result. Put a hot water bottle to your feet to draw the blood from your head. Put something cold on your head. If your mind gets to racing like an unattached engine, get up and read for a while if you have some warm place.

Avoid Plans Like Poison.

Above all things, don't let your mind get going on any form of plan—the shopping you want to do tomorrow, the gifts you must get for somebody's birthday. Nothing is more fatal than such activity. Think of dreamy things.

And now here is one more idea: If I wake in the night and find myself restless, I try to think of the things I have just been dreaming about. There is something about their disconnected, vague character that seems to lure me back to dreamland again. Perhaps it's absurd. But, as a friend of mine used to say of her favorite pills, "They may help you and they can't hurt you."

TOWN LINE

Town Line, Jan. 30.—Frank C. Eddy has decided to quit farming here and will leave about the middle of February for De Witt, Arkansas, where he will engage in rice farming with his brother-in-law, Mr. Eddy has for the past year, worked his father's farm.

Friday, February 7, he and his father, J. C. Eddy will offer a public auction of their personal and farm property and the city square farm.

James Sheard, who has recently returned from France, is visiting his uncle, L. C. Walker and family this week.

The Disadvantages of Wealth.

Somebody figures that to count $1,000,000 would require 102 years of steady work at the rate of eight hours a day every working day. You can see from this how embarrassed you would be if you had $1,000,000,000. You wouldn't even have time to count it.—Boston Globe.

THE SWEET MILK IS ALREADY IN THE FLOUR IN POWDER FORM

SO RICH IS AUNT JEMIMA PANCAKE FLOUR IT NEEDS NO EGGS

"I'm in town, Honey!"

How to make real southern pancakes

—without using milk or eggs

Like the wonderful-tasting pancakes for which southern cooks became famous—are the pancakes you can make with Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour.

And to make them you need only beat up the flour with water. All the rich ingredients needed to make perfect pancakes are already in the flour—even the milk.

Nothing could be easier—and as you lift the hot, golden cakes from the griddle, as you cut into their tender deliciousness—you will say that nothing could possibly taste better!

In Aunt Jemima Pancakes you that only milk can give—and so rich, so fine-flavored is the flour that it needs no eggs.

With milk and eggs at their present high prices, Aunt Jemima is more than ever the breakfast for you!

Order a package of Aunt Jemima today from your grocer. See what wonderful waffles, muffins and breadsticks it makes, too. And for variety get a package of Aunt Jemima Buckwheat—it's in the yellow package.

Pageantry Develops New World Democracy

TYRANNY, GREED, HATE and OTHER UGLY VICES IN CAST OF "WE COME AMERICA"

OW pageantry and the drama may play the role of fairy godmother to New World Democracy is told by Miss Hazel MacKaye, of Boston and New York, daughter of Steele MacKaye and sister of the poet, Percy MacKaye.

And no one is better fitted than Miss MacKaye to talk on this subject. She was one of the first persons in the United States to take up pageantry and develop it as an art, or a profession, as it has really become to her.

Before going into the business of writing sixteen pageants and producing many more, Miss MacKaye was on the stage. She played in three of her brother's productions and starred in some Broadway successes.

Her pageants have been on a variety of subjects. She devoted two years to the pageant of church history, "Darkness and Light," which was given in Boston, Chicago, Baltimore and Cincinnati. Her suffrage allegory was given at the time of President Wilson's first inauguration on the steps of the United States treasury.

Miss MacKaye is now director of the department of pageantry and the drama for the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association, and during the United War Work campaign last November she was chosen by the seven organizations to prepare pageants which helped to make the drive a success in all parts of the country.

Miss MacKaye's theory is that peace will create a big desire for pageantry and the drama on the part of the people. "Now that the war is over," she says, "some people have said to me, 'I suppose pageantry will not play so big a role in wedding public opinion.' To which I reply, 'That is quite wrong. Peace will bring an increased desire for pageantry and the drama.'"

"War is always a pageant. The colors of war—the men, the women, the fighting, the armies, the cavalry—all these make for a tremendous and continuous pageant. Pageantry has been an accompaniment of war since long before Christ. Read of wars in the Bible. They are immense pageants.

The Crusades are great examples of it, and it is always successful during times of war, because of the concentrated effort to win, which binds the various peoples together. There is a big desire to save humanity. People reach a tremendous pitch of excitement. There is a thrill about everything.

"After war there is a tremendous depression in stimulus. For an example of this, witness the great, pageant-like peace demonstrations in our big cities so recently, when people expressed their pent-up emotions. Almost immediately afterwards came a depression.

People, all the more now, demand a means of securing a great interest in life beyond the peace conference, a way of getting together. They not only want it, but are going to demand it.

"What we must do now is to make pageantry a peace move—to do the very things that war does—to unite people in their desire to serve humanity. Just think what it would mean to a community if all of the women who have done Red Cross and other war work during actual hostilities could catch the vision of lending their efforts to community service instead of going back to the state they were in before the war, of confining all their efforts to their own homes or to personal pleasures!

"The best way I know of getting a thrill—a brass band excitement of color, action and the desire to serve—is through pageantry. I quote an early book of my brother, Percy MacKaye, when I say that 'it is necessary to color peace pursuits with the same thrill and imagination as war.'"

"People of the country were welded together during the war by one aim, one desire, one consuming ambition—to win. If we could get this same united aim and desire not to have war as we had to make war to the finish, we might, through pageantry, help to do away with war forever.

Every Liberty Loan drive, every Red Cross campaign, and the big United War Work campaign, was a magnificent pageant, filled with color, posters and moving people, all united in the desire to win. Pageants are thus a part of life.

"The after war pageant can be a tremendous outlet for all emotions and, without doubt, dangerous emotions, which lead to undermining the morale of a people, can be diverted by turning them into channels of mutual understanding.

"The pageant has already proved itself a potent force in building up public spirit. Advantage should be taken of this, so that it can be used to widen the vision of all kinds and all conditions of people—the so called high-brows and low-brows of a community.

"A pageant, if correctly worked out, includes every element of a community. This fact can be stressed, and if joy and inspiration for helping the new world can be interpreted through a pageant, why not use the art as a reconstruction measure and not think of it as a bit of froth or a passing entertainment?

"It is my experience that the common mass of people is anxious to see that the world is rebuilt on democratic principles, and with them it is only a question of how to do it. On the other hand, there are a few reactionaries who say, 'Let the world revert to the way it was before the war.' These must be shown that to go back to pre-war conditions of society will spell disaster and will mean that the world has lost what it has suffered so much to win.

"If those of us who ought to have a vision of a community united for service neglect or refuse to take advantage of this opportunity, the people themselves, undirected, will carve our destinies for us.

"This community drama movement has come to stay, and women who have given up everything for war work can be shown concretely how to apply the same spirit which inspired that service to social service and the establishment of real democracy through pageantry.

"My ambition is to foster this movement and to present such pageants through the agency of the Y. W. C. A. Groups of girls at Y. W. C. A. industrial centers and in towns near military cantonments have been trained in pageants during the war. Few cities but have seen 'Columbia Draws the Sword,' 'We Come, America,' 'Columbia Calls,' and numerous other patriotic pageants. Even in France the Y. W. C. A. has trained French girls to take part in Allied pageants, and last summer pageants were staged at base hospitals, where the Y. W. C. A. has huts for nurses, at St. Etienne, Tours and other cities where the association has 'Foyers des Alliees' for French women industrial workers and Hostess Houses for American war workers and Signal Corps girls.

"With the way prepared as it has been during war time and the big opportunity at our hand because of the needs of the people during peace, community drama and pageantry can and should be developed into an immense motive force."
